Miss Iris Eckels, a Harding High school senior, will be crowned Queen in Harding High school's first Homecoming event at the Harding-Circleville football game Friday night at Harding stadium.

Her court attendants will be Miss Ann McDaniel, Miss Phyllis Badgley, Miss Jackie Gifford and Miss Mary Gruber, all seniors at Harding.

The honor will be bestowed upon Miss Eckels in a pre-game ceremony beginning at 7:45 p. m. The flag-raising ceremony will open the program and the crowning of the queen will immediately follow.

To Crown Queen

Dick Huddel, a member of the football squad, has been chosen by the Harding team to crown the Queen. Other escorts for the Queen and her attendants will be Robert Ralston, James Coss, James Hill and Robert Short. All are senior members of the football squad and were elected by the team.

To select the girl who will receive the title, candidates were nominated by the seniors of Harding and Edison schools and voted on by the entire student body. Following the outcome of this election, the first ten were put on a ballot for the run-off election, and the top five from this were given the honor, with the first one as the queen.

Miss Eckels, active in school affairs, is a member of the student council, the Y-Teens and G. A. A. clubs. Last year, she served as secretary of the Junior class.

Harding Cheerleader

Jackie Gifford, one of the school's cheerleaders this year, is a member of the G. A. A. and was treasurer of the Junior class last year. Ann McDaniel, president of the Y-Teens club this year, was a member of the student council last year. She also belongs to the G. A. A.

A member of the student council this year, the Y-Teens and G. A. A. clubs, Mary Gruber served as a class officer in her sophomore year at Harding. Phyllis Badgely is an officer in the Prop's and Q's club this year, and a member of the Y-Teens and the G. A. A. clubs.

The homegoming game is one of the special programs planned for the football season this year by the Athletic association.

VOTE BID MADE BY DEGAULLE

Asks Dissolution of Assembly and New General Elections in France.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 27—Gen. Charles De Gaulle called today for dissolution of France's national assembly and new general elections, and was promptly attacked by the Communists on charges of seeking to set up "a reactionary dictatorship."

De Gaulle asserted that the results of municipal elections which were begun throughout France last Sunday and completed yesterday proved that parliament no longer represents the people and called for new voting laws to enable the national legislature to have a "coherent majority."

Piles Up Vote

De Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF) piled up a larger popular vote in the elections than any other party—though it failed to show as well in rural voting yesterday as it did in the larger population centers a week ago. No party at present has a clear majority in parliament.

The wartime leader declared his party's showing had spelled the beginning of the end for his arch foes, the Communists.

Florimond Bonte, Communist party spokesman, declared that De Gaulle's statement was motivated by a desire for "personal power" and that his desires would "clash with the will of the French people, who will know how to unite its democratic working class force.

DeGaulle's statement came amid an impending cabinet crisis and the imminent threat of strikes by three Communist-dominated labor groups—the railwaymen, utility workers and government employes. These developments overshadowed the outcome to yesterday's runoff elections in France's small towns and villages, early returns from which put former Premier Edouard Herriot's Radical Socialists out in front.

Returns Come Slowly

Returns from yesterday's elections, in which voters in approximately 14,800 towns or villages of less than 9,000 population completed their selection of municipal councils, were slow in coming in.

First results, however, indicated that Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF)—which won almost 40 per cent of the popular vote in approximately 37,000 larger cities and towns last Sunday—was running a poor fifth behind the Communists.

Despite the RPF's comparatively poor showing in these returns, political observers believed that when the popular vote for the two elections was totaled De Gaulle's anti-Communist party would retain a clear majority.

Screen Writer, House Group Clash Over Right To Question

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—John Howard Lawson, screen writer, was excused from the witness stand of the house un-American activities committee today when he refused to state whether he is or ever has been a Communist.

Lawson shouted during a tumultous exchange with Committee Chairman Thomas (R-NJ) that he was refusing to answer the questions because it was an invasion of his private rights as a citizen. He contended that it is a question which the committee has no constitutional authority to ask.

The committee is holding hearings on Communist activities in the movie industry.

As Lawson lashed out at the committee, Thomas repeatedly banged his gavel in an attempt to halt Lawson.

Thomas said that Lawson had asked, through his attorney, to be heard. If he refused to respond to the committee's questions, Thomas said, then he would be excused from the stand and the record of the committee would stand without his testimony.

Chairman Issues Threat

Thomas also reminded Lawson that in the past others who had refused to respond to committee questioning had been held in contempt of congress.

A charge of contempt of congress is subject to jury trial. Conviction carries a penalty of up to a year in jail.

At the end of the exchange between the witness and Thomas, Lawson arose from the committee chair and resumed his place in the section of the room reserved for witnesses. Some spectators booed and Thomas rapped violently for order.

Then Louis J. Russell, a committee investigator, was called to the stand and testified that a Communist party membership card was issued to Lawson in 1944. The card, Russell said, bore number 47275 and was issued to "John Howard Lawson," identified as a movie writer.

Robert E. Stripling, chief committee investigator, took over. He read a long memorandum of what he said were Lawson's activities showing his Communist affiliation. Stripling also read several articles he said Lawson had written.

ALASKA SEEKS MISSING PLANE

Territory Organizes Far-Flung Search for Craft with 18 Aboard.

By The Associated Press

JUNEAU, Alaska, Oct. 27—A far-flung land, sea and air search for a missing Pan-American-World Airways plane with 18 aboard was organized in southeastern Alaska today as a lashing wind and rain storm in which the four-engined clipper vanished Sunday near Ketchikan continued to grip the area.

Rain-soaked clouds scudded low over the rugged inland passage, threatening to hamper plans to send dozens of planes aloft in hope of finding the big DC-4.

The 44 - passenger transport, which was carrying only 13 passengers, including one infant, and a crew of five, disappeared yesterday after radioing the Annette airport at 1:44 p. m. (PST) that "extreme turbulence" prevented a contemplated instrument landing.

Gusts of 40 miles an hour were being recorded then at the Annette field, 12 miles from Ketchikan. Winds gradually increased during the day until they reached 63 miles an hour by 9:30 p. m.

Hopes that the PAA clipper may have survived the storm and made an emergency landing hung on the reputation of the pilot, Capt. A. N. Monsen, 47, of Juneau, one of Alaska's best known bush fliers before he joined Pan-American's Alaska division in 1932.

Monsen said in his last report he was heading into the storm to Juneau, approximately 230 miles northward. His plane had gasoline enough to last until 8:40 p. m.

44 FEARED DEAD IN CRASH IN GREECE

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, Oct. 27—The Greek Air Force said today a Swedish airlines transport, officially reported carrying 44 persons including two Americans, crashed last night into Mt. Hymettos southeast of Athens.

Airmen who flew over the wreckage said all aboard were believed killed.

The airline, ABA, announced in Stockholm that 36 passengers and eight crewmen were aboard. The crew, it said, was made up of Swedes headed by a Briton, Capt. Kenneth John Douglas.

Air force headquarters said the Skymaster struck the 3,000-foot peak of the mountain, which extends north and south in the Attica plain and rises sharply only a few miles east of Hassani airport, forming a barrier to plane entrance from the east.

The plane, flying its schedule from Istanbul to Rome, flashed its last message at 7:12 p. m. (2 p. m. EST) last night.

The Americans aboard were reported only as a Mr. Wanner and a Miss Rush; addresses not specified.

Wreckage of the plane was located this morning by a Greek army plane. The pilot of the Greek plane said he could see only one person moving near the wreckage and believed the figure was that of a shepherd.

Tribute in New York

According to an Associated Press dispatch, as a part of the New York tribute, planes circled overhead, floral pieces floated on the harbor and flags were at half-staff as the transport ship arrived with the first group of war dead from Europe. Police estimated that 250,000 persons watched the funeral procession and 150,000 attended memorial services in Central park as guns roared salutes and church bells tolled. The flag-draped casket of a posthumous Congressional Medal of Honor winner—chosen to represent his comrades in arms anonymously, was born on a caisson from the transport to the park. Catholic, Protestant and Jewish chaplains participated in the memorial services.

Information concerning the interment of World War II dead in national cemeteries has been received by John P. Schwartz, local service officer, whose office is on the third floor at 132 East Center street. When the family chooses to have the remains shipped direct to the selected National cemetery for interment, there is no cost to the family for the grave site, the opening of the grave, or the actual interment or closing of

MANPOWER CALLED CRITICAL NAVY NEED

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27—Navy manpower needs are more critical than at any time in the history of the service, Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan said today.

Calling the personnel shortage a matter of concern to every American citizen "in the light of world conditions," Sullivan added:

"The time has come to be firm with ourselves if we wish to give meaning to the firmness we would assume in democracy's defense abroad.

"The time has come when we must count it a privilege to be among those who would be as bold in the pursuit of peace as we were daring in our recent months of battle for survival."

In an address prepared for a Navy day meeting of the Navy league, the new chief of the sea arm declared there are "forces loose in the world today which are inimical to our government and to our way of life—forces whose ideologies are at cross purposes with the democratic processes of peace-loving people."

"We must be prepared if necessary," Sullivan continued, "to defend our freedoms whenever and wherever they are challenged."

"Weapons and the techniques of war will change, but for the foreseeable future at least, success in war will be achieved only through the application of maximum pressure by land, sea and air forces."

HEATED WORDS MARK OPENING OF CONFERENCE

Little Progress Toward North Electric Settlement Seen in Morning Session.

Special to The Star

GALION, Oct. 27—The long-awaited conference between company and union representatives convened as scheduled at 11 a. m. today but adjourned 50 minutes later with little evidence of progress in settlement of the strike at the North Electric Co. here.

After heated discussions on the background of the long labor dispute the conferees adjourned at 11:50 a. m. under agreement to resume the talks at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

A tense atmosphere prevailed in the council chamber in city hall as the group assembled. Representing the North Electric Co., were R. K. McBerty of Galion, vice president; Robert Jamison of Cleveland, company attorney; Harry S. Haney of New York City, retained by the company as a representative of the Labor Relations Institute; and W. H. Walter of Galion, vice president. Union representatives were Walter Murphy of Toledo, assistant regional director, Edward Duck of Marion, international organizer; Herbert Arnold of Galion, shop committeeman; and "Toots" Martin of Detroit.

Completing the group around the conference table were Col. Thomas Brock, representing the state adjutant general's office, and Lt. Colonel Robert V. Graham, O. N. G. staff officer, Mayor William Amann of Galion and Ralph Schreck, sheriff of Crawford county.

By common consent Col. Brock acted as chairman.

He opened the conference with a statement it was hoped the group would be able to arrive at some decision so the plant could reopen and the people go back to work.

He asked both sides if they were prepared to enter into a discussion of the problem.

Jamison, company attorney, responded quickly that the "company was ready to discuss." His emphasis on the word discuss was not made clear to the assembly.

Duck said: "The union has been willing since the start of the strike to negotiate a contract."

Arguments Start Early

Preliminary verbal sparring soon developed into a heated argument between Duck and Murphy for the union and Jamison and Haney for the company.

Assails Taft-Hartley Act

For nearly 50 minutes the four covered considerable territory in the background, including the lack of a NLRB election at the Galion plant to determine bargaining rights.

Possible Test of the Law

Officials of the CIO United Automobile Workers and the strike-bound company faced each other across a table in a meeting which pointed to a possible Constitutional test of the Taft-Hartley labor act.

At one point Jamison asked, "what do you want?"

"A contract covering wages, hours, and working conditions, and we are ready to begin negotiations," Duck replied.

"Whom do you represent?" Haney asked.

"A majority of the production and maintenance employes, and we would like to include office employes and the engineering and pilled.

Jamison said the company stand was that although the national labor relations board had been asked Aug. 19 for a consent election, the legal procedure called for a five-day wait before the union could be certified. This placed the earliest possible effective date after Aug. 23, when the Taft-Hartley act went into effect.

Duck conceded that because the Taft-Hartley act required top union officials to sign the non-Communist affidavits, the union was not able at this moment to receive NLRB certification," even though he said he wrote the Cleveland regional office July 22 that the UAW-CIO had a majority in the plant.

When company spokesmen declared the union had failed to comply with terms of the Taft-Hartley law requiring union officials to sign anti-Communist affidavits, Murphy shouted a challenge to the law, calling it undemocratic. He said that to his knowledge "the proponents of the act themselves had not signed affidavits that they were not Communists."

The conference this morning was the one agreed to early last Thursday morning after union sympathizers had kept 375 workers virtually imprisoned in the

CAUSE OF POISONING AT LIMA UNCOVERED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 27—Dr. John Porterfield, state health director, said today that the department laboratories had established that either the meat course or beans was responsible for the food poisoning of more than 200 persons stricken at a Lima banquet Oct. 17.

Porterfield said the department had not yet established how the germs got into the food, but said the illness was caused either by the beans or one of the meat courses—turkey, dressing or gravy.

"It will be at least another 10 days before our test determines what caused the illness," he said.

The 200 were stricken following a National Rural Electric Cooperative association banquet attended by delegates from Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and West Virginia. None of those stricken was seriously ill.

The Bare hotel dining room was closed by Lima health officials three days and then allowed to reopen.

NEW FIRE FLARE-UPS FORECAST IN MAINE

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 27—A forecast of rising winds augured fresh flare-ups today in New England's exhausting battle against widespread forest fires that already have cost 20 lives and $32,000,000 damage.

For the first time in a week, the groggy army of the fire fighters held the line yesterday. "Under control" reports came from nearly all fire zones.

Meanwhile, Joseph A. P. Flynn, chief of Maine's state arson division, said it definitely had been established that three forest fires were set.

He added that a juvenile had been committed to the state school for boys for setting fires behind buildings in Wiscasset, and that a man was being held at Bath on charges of breaking and entering, larceny and arson in connection with fires at a home and in a

Byrnes Urges Foreign Policy Bipartisan and Open To Public View

This is a serialization of James F. Byrnes' "Speaking Frankly" —six of fifteen chapters of the book published Oct. 15, 1947, by Harper & Brothers. Copyright, 1947, by Donald S. Russell, trustee of the James F. Byrnes Foundation.

By JAMES F. BYRNES

ON JULY 25, the Potsdam Conference recessed, because the votes cast in the British election several weeks earlier were to be counted the following day. Mr. Churchill had brought the leader of the opposition, Clement R. Attlee, to the conference, so that there would be continuity of representation regardless of the outcome of the election.

The day before the two Britons left for home to hear the results, I asked Mr. Churchill what he thought of his chances of remaining in office. He said he had no idea of the result but that the people who professed to know about elections had been betting that the Conservative party would maintain a sizable majority of the seats in the house of commons. He felt very confident of victory. Mr. Attlee, on the other hand, impressed me as believing that his party would make a fine showing but would be defeated.

It made an interesting point that in the midst of our wrangling over how elections should be conducted in the liberated areas, these two leaders, weeks after the votes had been cast in England and by the armed forces overseas, were entirely unaware of the landslide that had taken place to sweep the Labor party into power. The result was a surprise to all of us who had discussed the matter with them.

When the new prime minister returned to Potsdam, he brought Ernest Bevin to succeed Anthony Eden as foreign minister. As personalities, Attlee and Bevin differ from Churchill and Eden about as much as it is possible for people to differ.

Soviet Demands Discussed

Soon after their arrival, Mr. Attlee and Mr. Bevin called on the President and the four of us discussed the work of the conference. The President mentioned the Soviet demand for East Prussia and indicated on a map the changes in the boundary lines of Germany, Poland and the Soviet Union that thus would be effected. Mr. Bevin immediately and forcefully presented his strong opposition to those boundaries. His manner was so aggressive that both the President and I wondered how we would get along with this new foreign minister. Some time later I told Mr. Bevin of the impression he had made on us at our first meeting, adding that we soon came to admire his bluntness and directness.

Britain's stand on the issues before the conference was not altered in the slightest, so far as we could discern, by the replacement of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden by Mr. Attlee and Mr. Bevin.

With the arrival of the new British leaders, the conference resumed and we started work in earnest on the most difficult issue before us—Germany.

We had arrived in Potsdam to face what amounted to a fait accompli so far as the Polish-German frontier was concerned. Prior to Yalta, the three powers had agreed to divide Germany into four zones of occupation, and they had made a positive declaration in Section VI of the Yalta Protocol that the final delimitation of the western frontier of Poland should await the peace conference. Although the protocol would seem to permit no misunderstanding, we learned before leaving the United States for Germany that, without any consultation either with the United Kingdom or with the United States, the Soviets had transferred all the German territory east of the Neisse River to Poland for administration.

Call for Explanation

Both President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill promptly asked for an explanation of this unilateral action in establishing, for all practical purposes, another zone. Such a course, the President maintained, not only was contrary to agreement but would make the settlement of problems such as reparations far more difficult.

The Soviet defense was that the German had fled before the Russian armies, and, since it was necessary to have some government in the area, they had permitted Poland to take over its administration. Generalissimo Stalin agreed that no one of the powers had the right to create a new zone, but said that the Soviet government had to be assured of stable conditions in the rear of the Red Army. He then admitted that Poland was actually removing from this area substantial amounts of coal, which we contended certainly should be considered part of reparations payments.

The President asked how the reparations issue could ever be settled "if part of the German territory is gone before we reach agreement on what reparations should be."

Stalin remarked that everything the President said was irrelevant since "no frontiers had been ceded at the Crimea Conference except for the provisions that Poland would receive territory."

"The western frontier question is open," Stalin said, "and the Soviet Union is not bound."

The President repeated: "You are not?"

"No," Stalin replied.

We were concerned also by the huge displacement of population resulting from this action of the Soviets. Although Stalin claimed "no single German remained in the area to be given to Poland," an area that had a prewar German population of nearly nine million, our information indicated that there were at least two million Germans left there. Later, representatives of the Polish government admitted the presence of approximately a million and a half Germans, but contended that many of them would leave voluntarily if the area were assigned to Poland.

Million To Feed

Mr. Churchill had pointed out that this Soviet-supported plan would take nearly one-fourth of the arable land within Germany's 1937 frontiers. Not only would the German food supply be cut, he stressed, but more than a million Germans would be forced into the western zones, "bringing their mouths with them."

Time after time, in discussing the claims of Poland and the question of recognizing the existence of Polish administration of the area during the occupation, the President repeated that there could be no transfer of territory until there was a peace conference. In addition, we specifically refrained from promising to support at the German Peace Conference any particular line as the western frontier of Poland.

Our deliberate avoidance of a promise on the Polish border is emphasized by the promise we did make in the protocol about the transfer of the city of Konigsberg to the Soviet Union, when we said: "the President of the United States and the British Prime Minister have declared that they will support the proposal of this conference at the forthcoming peace settlement."

To remove even an excuse for Poland or the Soviet Union to claim that the line had been established or that there was any promise to support a particular line, the Berlin Protocol declared: "The three heads of government reaffirm their opinion that the final delimitation of the western frontier of Poland should await the peace settlement."

No Evidence of Promise

In the light of this history, it is difficult to credit with good faith any person who asserts that Poland's western boundary was fixed by the conferees, or that there was a promise that it would be established at some particular place.

AT SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE. Pictured on the terrace of a San Francisco hotel are Senator Arthur Vandenberg (right) and John Foster Dulles, advisor to the U. S. delegation, taking time out between plenary sessions of the UNCIO for an informal chat.

The conference ended in good spirits. But the American delegation that headed for home probably was less sanguine than the one that had departed from Yalta.

Certainly, no one of us suspected that the first treaties of peace would be concluded only after 16 more months of almost continuous negotiation. We considered the conference a success. We firmly believed that the agreements reached would provide a basis for the early restoration of stability to Europe.

The agreements did make the conference a success but the violation of those agreements has turned success into failure.

Byrnes On Foreign Policy

The responsibilities that clearly are ours will be discharged in the years ahead only if we develop in international affairs a policy that truly reflects the will of our people. I am convinced that to build a people's foreign policy we must pursue three primary objectives.

First, we must have a foreign policy that is bipartisan in its origin and development; that is national rather than political in its conduct and its character; and that, consequently, is a continuing policy worthy of the confidence of other nations.

Second, we must have an institution that is responsive to the will of the people and able to translate our policies into effective action.

And third, we must leave behind the era of secret diplomacy. We must make sure that our people have an opportunity to know the problems their diplomats confront so that they can judge properly the proposed solution. The right of the people to know is a basic element in the development of a people's foreign policy.

These objectives, I know from experience, are not easy to attain. But the story of what I encountered in my pursuit of them may be of some service in the work that lies ahead.

Strong Senate Team

At Yalta, immediately after the Big Three agreed to support the Dumbarton Oaks proposal and before he left the conference table, President Roosevelt instructed Secretary Stettinius to name, as members of the delegation to the San Francisco conference, Senator Connally and Senator Vandenberg. They worked in harmony with Secretary Stettinius at San Francisco and their wholehearted cooperation was largely responsible for the almost unanimous vote by which our adherence to the United Nations was approved by the senate.

Before the first meeting of the council of foreign minister, I decided to invite a prominent Republican well informed on international affairs to accompany me. It did not occur to me then that a senator could be away for so long a time as the treaty-drafting business was likely to consume. I consulted Senator Vandenberg. He suggested that I invite John Foster Dulles, who for years has been keenly interested in our foreign relations and is exceptionally well qualified. Mr. Dulles accepted the invitation, notwithstanding his business commitments, and was of great assistance. Later I recommended to President Truman that Mr. Dulles be a member of our delegation to the first meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations. He accomplished much and continued his service at the meeting of the General Assembly in New York.

Bipartisan Program

Our participation in the United Nations constantly and deliberately has been bipartisan. At both sessions of the General Assembly, our delegation included, in addition to Mr. Dulles, the top-ranking Democratic and Republican members of the foreign affairs committees of both the senate and the house, senators Connally and Vandenberg and Representatives Bloom and Eaton. At the first session at London one of the delegates was my friend John G. Townsend, former senator from Delaware, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, and a man respected by all senators.

When Edward R. Stettinius resigned as head of the permanent delegation to the United Nations, I recommended to the President that he appoint the Vermont Republican, Senator Warren R. Austin, as chief of our permanent mission to the United Nations. The President was delighted with the suggestion. He liked Austin, having been closely associated with him in the senate.

After we agreed at Moscow to resume work on the preparation of peace treaties at Paris, I asked Senators Connally and Vandenberg to go with me as advisers. They generously agreed and served through the meetings of the council and also during the peace conference. I discussed with them every phase of our foreign relations. In 1946 they spent 213 days away from Washington attending international conferences. No two legislators ever served their country more loyally or more efficiently than they did at those meetings.

Vandenberg's Aid Valuable

Because Senator Vandenberg represented the political party opposed to the administration, and because he enjoyed the confidence of the overwhelming majority of his party, his support enabled us to speak of our foreign policy as the American policy.

At the conference of the council of foreign ministers each delegation has five seats at the table. Seated with me were the two senators, the deputy in charge of the work on the treaty under discussion, and the interpreter. Each foreign minister can bring to the conference room an additional eight or ten members of his staff. It makes quite an audience. Consequently the ministers frequently hold private meetings in the hope that the absence of an audience may promote agreement. When these meetings are held each foreign minister is allowed to bring two associates in addition to the interpeter. To all such meetings, I asked the two senators to accompany me. I preferred to have their counsel rather than the aid of the technicians of the state department, as helpful as these gentlemen always were. Also, I wanted the senators to know at first hand every stage of the treaty-making.

The political party in power cannot ask the opposition party to share responsibility for the conduct of our foreign relations unless the leaders of the opposition are fully advised of our policies. This is true when the congress and president are of the same party. It is particularly true when a majority of the congress and the chief executive are not of the same political party.

Counseled With Senators

While Senator Vandenberg and Senator Connally were with me I sought their counsel not only on the treaties but on other matters connected with our foreign relations that were submitted to me by the department each day. They were helpful and, though I knew they were frequently and skillfully tempted, not once did either of them give to newspaper friends advance information of our plans.

The participation of Senators Connally and Vandenberg in the meetings of the Council of Foreign Ministers, the peace conference and the United Nations served to let the people of the world know that the foreign policy of the United States was a continuing policy and would not end with the defeat of a political party.

* * *

Mr. Byrnes was secretary of state for a total of 562 days. 350 of which were passed at international conferences. In spite of this, he reorganized the department of state, including many wartime agencies which were transferred to it and fought his political battles in Washington. One of the toughest of them came on his return from Moscow on Dec. 29, 1945. A story was widely published that President Truman had summoned the secretary of state to his boat on the Potomac and expressed strong disapproval of his work in Moscow. The story was untrue, but it was believed to have been inspired from inside the White House. Mr. Byrnes tells this story for the first time, naming names and citing the record, in the next installment of "Speaking Frankly" which will be published tomorrow.

TRAINING OF PARENTS URGED BY EDUCATOR

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 27—Parenthood in America is wrongly considered merely an unskilled labor of love, a neuropsychiatrist told the 28th annual meeting of the Ohio Society for Crippled Children, headed today for adjournment.

"The lack of training for parenthood is staggering," declared Dr. Leslie B. Hohman of Duke university. "We require at least four years of college before we permit a girl to teach our children five hours a day, but a parent—controlling a child for 24 hours a day—needs no training whatsoever."

To meet this training lack, Dr. Hohman said, he would put living babies in every high school, where boys and girls would be taught to care for them.

Turning to children sufferers of cerebral palsy, Dr. Hohman asserted social acceptance is their first need.

"Teach cerebral palsied children to speak intelligently and briefly," he admonished, "otherwise, they will never get a hearing in the outside world."

Parents, the Duke professor said, should take a realistic attitude toward child training rather than a sentimental approach.

The society's annual meeting has a business session and election of officers on today's agenda

Roving Reports

by Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, U[NCLE] Boobly has gone lain[d] that sworn and shield[ed], going to spend the rest of [his] days down by the riverside, [fish]ing. He has retired from [the] pursuit of further pelf. [I] don't have a lot—but I have [en]ough," says Uncle Boobly.

[De]cision has kind of sur[prised] the rest of the family. Boobly—my father's broth[er] was the youngest of 18 chil[dren] and he is [the] first member [of the] family to [die] since [Mother Tom] came to [Heaven] after the [flu]. The rest of [them] just kept [liv]ing and they [still] they [will]. But Uncle Boobly says [he's] more to [live] than that.

Hal Boyle

I'm going to travel—going to see California,' he says.

Uncle Boobly has never been one to slight a good time. He almost saw France in the First World War. He was on the way over but when the Germans heard Uncle Boobly was coming they gave up, and the American government turned the ship around in mid-ocean and brought Uncle Boobly right back home. Except for that Paris would still remember him.

Nobody who spent more than an hour with Uncle Boobly could ever forget him. He was always a rainbow chaser, and he hasn't quit yet.

* * *

WHEN HE HUNG UP his Army uniform in 1918, he went to work in my father's grocery store in Kansas City. But all he was interested in then was dancing. He was best at a kind of dance in which you bounced up and down like you were on two pogo sticks. About once a year Uncle Boobly still gets out on the floor at family reunions and does that same dance. He hasn't bothered to learn a new one because he figures one good dance will last a lifetime.

He has a bay window now and wears down quickly, but the spirit's still there.

When he worked for Dad he could dance all night, but the next day he had a hard time at the meat block slicing up pork loins. Hardly able to lift a cleaver some mornings.

"Pretty heavy today," he'd say, and wink.

Uncle Boobly lived at our house then. He didn't like us kids to call him by his nickname, so he began paying us 10 cents a week to call him by his real name—"Uncle Martin." But he got behind in his payments and owes me for 22 years. At 10 cents a week that comes to $114.40. So he's still "Uncle Boobly."

* * *

WELL, IN TIME HE went into business for himself. He and Aunt Stella opened a small neighborhood grocery store, and Uncle Boobly had a large wooden figure of a butcher made in his likeness. It served the same purpose as the old cigar store Indians. Customers could look down the street, and if they didn't see the wooden butcher standing outside they knew the store wasn't open. Uncle Boobly was never one to make any man take an unnecessary step.

Because he was the youngest, he was always regarded by his brothers and sisters as the perennial "baby of the family."

But Uncle Boobly grew up fast. He did well during the war and now he's sold his store and decided to take life easy. He still is a few years shy of 60, and the old wanderfoot has got him. The rest of the family can't get over the fact one of the tribe really has retired, and they want him to stay put.

"Well, I haven't seen California," says Uncle Boobly, "and I ain't getting any younger."

Cars driven by James R Wooley, 51, of 206 North Seffner avenue, and Lloyd O'Dell Simpson, 26, of near Marion, collided on North Main at Elk avenue at 4:30 p m Sunday. Minor damage to both cars resulted.

A three-car accident resulting in damage to all three cars occurred at 5:14 p m Sunday on North Main street at Fairground. Cars driven by Thomas Todars, 56, of 119 West Columbia street, and Chase B Heyman, 19, of Norwalk, were going south on North Main street, while a car driven by Mrs Blanche A. According to the police report, the Todars car attempted to make a right turn from the center of the street as the Heyman car started to pass on the right side, forcing the Heyman car into the Coffey car. The Coffey car was damaged in the left door, front fender and front wheel. Fenders of the other two cars were damaged.

A donation of money was voted to the booth festival. Guests were Mrs Lizzie Hughes and Mrs Florence Stubbs. The hostess was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Chard Jerew. The next meeting will be Nov. 20 with Mrs. Ralph Hurr of 551 Mary street.

RED MEETING BROKEN UP

TRENTON, N. Eisler did not appear at the meeting hall in the contemporary club, across the street from the state house.

Navy Day

TODAY is Navy Day, the first since the consolidation of the services.

It sees the Navy holding a place of undiminished importance in our national defense establishment. It sees greater responsibilities ahead for the Navy as Great Britain curtails her fleets and alters its empire commitments, leaving the task of guarding the sea lanes to our ships.

Those who say the Navy is obsolescent are wrong. It merely must bring new equipment to new tasks. Today's aircraft carriers may be tomorrow's base for rockets. Already more than 40 per cent of the Navy's budget goes for aviation. Responsibility for marine transport and undersea craft is still an important part of the Navy's assignment.

Support for the Navy is a vital factor in our national security. Our best wishes go to those who man it for our protection.

Mr. Truman's Paradox

THE United States has become so prosperous it must have a special session of congress to save it from a depression.

This is the paradox President Truman gives as his main reason for convening congress next month. The European emergency now is in second place on the list of urgent public business.

Mr. Truman didn't invent the paradox himself. Many have noted that popular confidence wasn't keeping pace with economic statistics. They have watched the curious behavior of stocks and the tendency of ordinary people to be skeptical of the future value of dollars.

The paradox of so much prosperity that a depression looms is real and it is earnest. It is not a politician's dream, not even an economist's. It's the powder keg that can let loose and blow the United States into a decade of deflation like the 30's. The nation's prosperity exists only in terms of dollars whose value has been drained out of them by some of the strangest contrivances and fallacies ever perpetrated.

That is what Mr. Truman is talking about, and he deserves credit for it because his administration, his party and his advisers have been among the guiltiest contributors to the economic nonsense. He deserves credit for admitting that he needs a Republican-dominated congress to share responsibility for trying to do something about it before the bubble bursts.

The paradox really boils down to the fact that the United States has been mistaking a lot of dollars for a lot of wealth. Only if the value of dollars is unchanged can wealth be measured by them, as anyone knows who has looked at $10,000 houses that formerly were worth $5,000 and $1,600 automobiles that formerly sold for $850.

The cost of World War II must be taken out of the wealth of all the nations that fought in it. They only increased the circulation of money, to conceal how much value was being taken out of dollars. The real wealth of the United States was dissipated in war and is still being dissipated in the attempt to deal with war's consequences. In 1947 the President of the United States finally has mustered the courage to tell his countrymen they can't achieve prosperity by fighting a war.

The New Look in Hats

AMERICA'S hatters are conspiring to foist the "new look" on men. Next February all hatters will introduce simultaneously a new skimmer called "scoop." Its exact appearance is being guarded as sedulously as the 1948 automobiles. However, with an admonition to keep it under your hat, the manufacturers do hint that "scoop" will have a narrow brim and a high crown.

Men aren't as easily stampeded as women into changing styles, and hat styles least of all. When the average man breaks in a new hat, he gets used to it, develops an affection for it and parts with it regretfully when it becomes so shabby his wife burns it. New hats frighten and annoy some men and those wearing them frequently sneak quick looks in mirrors to see if they look as queer as they feel.

Unless hatters have devised something extra special that makes men want to run out and buy the new model, let them not be too disappointed if it gets a lukewarm reception.

The Leisure Class

AN EXAMINATION of the calendar for November, a standard 30-day month, as distinguished from the family-size 31-day job and kiddie-size February, reveals that this year it will have five Sundays and five Saturdays. In addition there are election, Armistice and Thanksgiving days which many combine with the holiday to make a long weekend. For those on the five-day week, that adds up to 13 days off out of 30, give a day, take a day.

The work week has just about been whittled to the point where many a man can start looking around for another job to fill in his spare time—and if living costs keep increasing that's what he'll be doing.

Scanning the Record

By George E. Sokolsky

Navy Day, an Expression of Love of Country.

THERE are some who say that the day of great navies is over, that hereafter war will be fought in the air. They would scrap the Navy, abolish the infantry and depend solely on bombs. The British have actually reduced their fleet until it amounts to almost nothing. Russia has no fleet. Japan, which before the war was the third greatest naval power, now possesses no navy. The only remaining fighting navy on all this earth is that of the United States of America.

That is today. Who can say what the facts will be in five years? The Marshall plan, as drawn up by the committee of European economic cooperation, of which Ernest Bevin of England was chairman, contained this paragraph:

"The participating countries intend, during the next four years, to make good their wartime losses of 22 million gross registered tons of shipping tonnage. Part of this gap will be filled by purchases, but a far larger tonnage will be built in the participating countries' own shipyards. At the end of 1951 the merchant fleets at the disposal of the participating countries will be somewhat larger than in 1938, but against this must be set the disappearance of the German merchant fleet.

War Threat Still Present

This, of course, refers to the merchant marine, but what it means is that all the mercantile nations of Europe plan to have larger fleets than ever before and that they will require navies to protect their vessels and the lanes of commerce, because war has not been abolished as an instrument of international settlement of differences. Granted that the air is increasingly more important both in offensive and defensive warfare, and that this country is pursuing the mad policy of permitting its air arm to deteriorate in the face of danger, it would be equally foolhardy to permit our Navy to be weakened. The United States is beset by envy, jealousy and ill-will. Its defenses must not be weakened.

Navy Day Observance

This year, Navy Day, as usual, is related to the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, who translated a show into an effective Navy. And for such a navy, recruits are needed, particularly as 350,000 young men will leave it, after serving two years. Their places must be taken by volunteers.

Also this year, Navy Day is important because the bodies of our dead are being brought back home to those who love and honor them. Here in New York a religious ceremony at sea is being conducted to honor those dead coming on an Army transport, the Joseph V. Connolly, dedicated to the memory of a newspaperman, the late president of the King Features Syndicate. Prayers will be spoken in our three traditional languages of religion, Hebrew, Latin and English, and wreaths of flowers will be cast into the sea to form a garland of honor and love. Parents of the dead will have an opportunity to salten the waters of the ocean with their tears.

An Inspiring Prayer

Admiral Nimitz has offered a beautiful prayer for this occasion that must be an inspiration, particularly for the parents of boys who have served. His prayer reads:

". . . This will be a fitting occasion to offer at divine services on ships and stations gratitude to God for His blessing and especially for the love of our families which is so vitally related to our happiness and the quality of our service and achievements. It is hoped that all of us will renew our pledge of fidelity to our religion, our sense of moral values, our duty to our families, and our loyalty to our country, with a united prayer that peace 'shall cover the earth 'as the waters cover the sea.'"

The value of such traditions of Navy Day is not so much in whatever propaganda is done for a larger Navy or for recruiting, nor as an exhibition of physical strength nor even for the retention of as large a Navy as we have. It is rather that every reminder of our national achievement serves to bind us together more fervently in national unity—for in spite of one world, nationalism, love of country, pride in country is still the strongest American ideal.

The First Hundred Husbands the Hardest?

An Oregon lady, married 15 times in the past 22 years, admits she'll get married again "if the right man comes along."

And they call man the optimistic sex.

Married 15 times. . . . she's changed her name oftener than her makeup.

Her husbands ought to get together and hold an annual convention, like the American Legion.

Fifteen marriages . . . she makes Tommy Manville look like a semi-pro.

It must be embarrassing to have a familiar looking stranger speak to you on the street and then wonder the rest of the day if possibly you'd met somewhere on a honeymoon.

One can understand her desire to find "the right man," all right . . . but must she go about finding him by the process of elimination?

Wallace's Influence Dimmed

By Mark Sullivan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—In the Democratic party, the only person, excepting President Truman, about whom there is any talk or effort looking to the Presidential nomination next year is Henry A. Wallace. Mr. Wallace himself does not avow any wish for the nomination. But in a broader sense he is the most politically active person in the United States. He travels prodigiously, addressing meetings sponsored by his associates, and urges audiences to organize for political action. How is all this to be evaluated? What is its relation to the coming presidential year?

A good way to begin is to start with President Truman. That he will be nominated next year is about the most certain fact in politics. During more than 50 years every president serving his first term has been nominated to succeed himself. The rule has been followed as to presidents who were elected to their first terms, as McKinley, Taft, Wilson, Hoover and Franklin Roosevelt. It has also been followed as to presidents in Mr. Truman's position, serving first term into which they entered as vice presidents following the death of the president. These have been Theodore Roosevelt, Coolidge and now Mr. Truman.

Rule of Precedent

This rule of precedent is poohpoohed by some zealous followers of Mr. Wallace on the theory that precedents do not count in a world of change. That this is a world in which old rules do not count as a basic thesis of the Left Wing school of thought. But the precedent has become a precedent because of reasons it rests upon.

A party that has a president serving his first term and does not nominate him to succeed himself would thereby incur a deadly handicap. The party would be saying to voters that it does not approve the record made under its present president, but that it asks for another chance with a different candidat. Even if the president in office should voluntarily take himself out of the picture, the handicap would remain—he would seem to be confessing, on behalf of himself and his party, that the record of his administration does not justify asking for another term. That Mr. Truman should not ask for the presidential nomination next year, or that the Democrats should not nominate him are both unthinkable.

Then how account for the followers of Mr. Wallace, who in some states are organizing to elect delegates committed to him in the Democratic national convention next year? They may be infatuated by recalling how nearly they succeeded in making Mr. Wallace the vice presidential nominee in the Democratic convention of 1944. But between that situation and the present is a world of difference. Mr. Wallace was already vice president, and to renominate him had some force of logic. Also, Mr. Wallace in 1944 had the close friendship of the party head then in the presidency—though Mr. Roosevelt, yielding to conservative party leaders, had refrained from backing Mr. Wallace for renomination to the vice presidency. He was so friendly that subsequently he took Mr. Wallace into his cabinet.

How Large a Figure?

How large a figure will Mr. Wallace be in the coming presidential year, whether as a force within the Democratic party, an immense majority of whose leaders will have none of him, or as the presidential candidate of a new third party, which some of his followers look forward to as a possibility and which Mr. Wallace himself vaguely and guardedly hints as a possibility in case the Democrats reject him and his ideas?

Mr. Wallace next year may have prominence of a curious kind, arising not out of his strength but out of hostility to him. He is associated, in a kind of reverse way, with our relation to Russia. The association has been made conspicuous by events that were sensational. He was in President Truman's cabinet, and there evolved a policy toward Russia inconsistent with the official administration policy that was being carried out by Secretary of State Byrnes. Mr. Wallace made a speech expounding his notion of what our policy toward Russia should be. Secretary Byrnes was thus put in an impossible position. After a few days Mr. Truman dismissed Mr. Wallace from his Cabinet, as he had to.

More Tension Expected

The policy toward Russia which Mr. Wallace dissented from was frequently described by those who did not like it as "get tough with Russia." During the year and a month since Mr. Wallace criticized our policy on Russia events have caused most of our people to consider that our policy of firmness about Russia was not firm enough, and that we did not get firm soon enough. Every sign suggests that our relations with Russia are likely to become more tense. The administration policy is formally supported by both parties, overwhelmingly backed by the people. If, during the coming presidential year, the public thinks of Mr. Wallace as the symbol of dissent from our policy about Russia, his political potency is not likely to be large.

Mr. Bowles and Mr. Porter

By Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

PRESIDENT Harry Truman, with an obvious reluctance, is at last facing up to the facts. He has faced up, not only to the absolute necessity of action on foreign aid, but to the almost equal necessity of doing something about domestic prices. The two subjects are, in a sense, one and indivisible, simply because there is no use lending dollars to halt economic deterioration abroad if there is little or nothing the dollar can buy.

The question remains whether anything really effective can be done about the bulging domestic price line. Certainly the task of clamping back controls on the careening American economy is not an appetizing one. There are those who gravely doubt that the job can be done at all even if—and this is a big if—the President is determined to do it, and if—this is a bigger if—the Eightieth congress will grant him the necessary authority to do it.

Ghosts of the Past

In this connection, it is worth considering the views of two ghosts from the price control past. Paul Porter and Chester Bowles could now, if they wished, indulge in the hollow pleasures of crying "I told you so." Indeed, the only trouble with their dire predictions of what would happen if price control were dropped is that these predictions were insufficiently dire. At any rate, both Mr. Porter and Mr. Bowles are convinced that the job of getting prices under control again can be done, and that it must be done, if catastrophe is to be avoided. Since both men know something of the horrible headaches involved, their views are interesting. Here, specifically, is how the two former OPA chiefs think the job could be done:

Both agree that to attempt to revive the whole complicated business of price controls at the consumer level—fixed prices for everything from diapers to oboes—would be futile. Both believe that the first step necessary is to freeze, rather than to attempt to roll back, prices on a few basic commodities—wheat, corn, cotton, steel, copper, fats and oils. To this list Mr. Bowles adds livestock. Mr. Porter does not. His dreadful experiences with the moribund OPA, when he was, in his own words, "trying to prevent an orderly retreat from becoming an obscene rout," have convinced him that it is impossible to control meat prices without rationing. And he agrees with other observers that it would take many months to restore any kind of effective rationing.

Two Requirements

Moreover, effective control of even a few basic commodities, Mr. Porter believes, requires two conditions. One is that the control authority be granted for two years, so that producers would not hold back goods in the hope that control would soon end. The other is wide allocations powers, and the willingness to use them. He also believes that some form of wage control would be necessary. Given all this Mr. Porter believes that the necessary controls would be functioning reasonably effectively within two months. He acknowledges that the results would be far from perfect and "plenty rough on some people." But he believes that the present emergency demands some such action.

Mr. Porter's predecessor at the OPA helm, Mr. Bowles, would go further. In the first place, he wants rationing. He agrees that it would be half a year before rationing were fully effective. But he thinks it could be made 70 per cent effective in three months, "if we really went to work at it," —and he is convinced the effort is worth making.

He has, moreover, an ingenious scheme to discourage over-feeding of livestock and thus make the necessary grains available for Europe. Vast quantities of grain are wasted by over-fattening hogs and cattle for choice cuts. He would therefore use price control to penalize over-fed livestock. He suggests that price controls be frozen at the current level for livestock at a certain weight. For hogs and cattle over this weight, the maximum legal price would actually be lower than for their slimmer brethren. Mr. Bowles claims that this scheme is perfectly practical, and that by eliminating over-feeding, it would save at least 170 million bushels of grain for the hungry world.

Would Control Wages

He has another idea. He agrees with Mr. Porter that some sort of wage control—conspicuously absent from the CIO program—will be necessary if the national economy is to get again on an even keel. But he believes that wage control should be balanced off against an excess profits tax. He therefore suggests that the best profit year in the last 10 years should be selected as the profit maximum in all businesses, and that profits above this maximum should be taxed away. He argues that this arrangement would be eminently fair, and that it would have two results—revenue would be provided for the foreign aid program, and producers would plow back profits into lower prices, thus bringing down the price level.

It takes no great political sophistication to sense that both programs, and particularly the Bowles program, are hardly politically practical at the moment. such measures would seem to have rather less than no chance of passing the Eightieth congress. Perhaps Mr. Bowles and Mr. Porter are wrong in thinking that such measures are needed to avert catastrophe. Perhaps such softer expedients as the President is likely to propose will suffice. But it is necessary to keep one's fingers crossed.

Word from T. Manville

By Truman Twill

Some tomcats, as has been pointed out bef[ore] in this column, will do anything for 85 cen[ts]. An "Are you all right?" note to T. Manville, t[he] department's roving contributor, now sett[led] snugly in Florida for the winter, brings the f[ol]lowing contribution:

* * *

North for the Summer

This place is getting cluttered up already w[ith] fat women who waddle, thin women who wig[gle] and tired businessmen and old timers that ha[ve] filtered down from the North. Before next su[m]mer, a couple million people will come here [to] get sunburned, frozen to death, rained on, i[m]posed on, overcharged and played for sucke[rs] and they'll love it. Even the cats they bring w[ith] them will love it, though the cats have a mu[ch] better reason, everything considered.

I am working on a little proposition, in a catty way, and you might be interested in try[ing] it out on some people. I have been telling [the] Florida cats how nice it is up north in the su[m]mer, with the idea of making them vacati[on] minded for the months when there's noth[ing] down here but sunshine. If Floridans could [be] persuaded to go North for the summer, the sa[me] as northerners come to Florida for the win[ter], northerners would have a chance to get th[eir] money back.

You pay me 85 cents apiece for writing the columns, and I spend the 85 cents down he[re]. But it wasn't earned down here. So in order [to] keep things from being lopsided, someone shou[ld] spend 85 cents earned in Florida up North. It[s] the same thing as everybody in the Middle We[st], the South, the Far West and so on contributi[ng] to the support of New York City, except th[at] New York City sometimes returns part of [the] money when its hot shots take trips into [the] sticks to see whether the natives have decid[ed] to revolt yet.

I have plenty of time to think here in Flori[da]. There is nothing much for a tomcat to do in [a] way of work. You see lots of us just lyi[ng] around, thinking. We fur-bearing tomcats a[re] not up against the complications that keep [the] two-legged variety of tomcats in nervous [a] most of the time, which makes it possible for [us] to think more clearly.

You give some attention to what I say abo[ut] making it fashionable for Floridans to co[me] North in the summertime and let northerne[rs] get back some of the money they've been spen[d]ing in Florida. I think it's a pretty good id[ea].

(This is more of a letter than an essay, bu[t] hope you will send the 85 cents anyway. [If] Byrnes, Morgenthau, Ickes and those fell[ows] having such a great success, I should ma[ybe] write a diary and sell it for $85,000 instead.)

Army To Investigate Sentence of Ohio GI

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27 — A "full investigation" of a life sentence, imposed upon 18-year-old Pvt. Thomas A. Gusik, for slaying two Italians while on sentry duty, was promised to the youth's parents today by Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall.

Royall was met by the couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Gusik, as he entered a hotel yesterday after flying here from Washington to address a Navy day luncheon today

The secretary said he was uninformed of the case, but ordered his executive assistant, Col. Robert A. Ginsburgh, to obtain details.

Later, after the officer had listened to the parents and others interested in the case, Royall appeared on the mezzanine overlooking the hotel lobby and shouted to Ginsburgh.

"I want you to get the full details of the case and I want you to assure the parents it will be fully investigated."

Pvt. Gusik, recently brought back to the United States and now confined at Camp Kilmer, N. J., was accused of permitting the Italians to enter an Army supply camp in Italy and then machine-gunning them

Governor William Bradford of the Massachusetts colony was the founder of the Thanksgiving festival.

Social Affairs

THE wedding anniversary of the bride's parents was chosen by Miss Louise Gracely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey T. Gracely of 331 East Church street and William H. Pohler Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Pohler of 359 South Seffner avenue, for their wedding last evening in Trinity Baptist church.

The only illumination in the church was from the myriads of cathedral candles and the decorations were entirely of green and white. Double branched candelabra with tall lighted tapers extended across the back of the choir loft and at either side were tapers held in graduated candelabra in a setting of greenery. Masses of ferns, white chrysanthemums and three pairs of seven-branch candelabra formed the setting for the ceremony. A large bouquet of white chrysanthemums, in front of which was the prie dieu, was offset at either side with two floor vases of chrysanthemums and an arrangement of woodwardia.

Each of the windows in the main part of the church was illuminated with nine candles held in a low holder to which was caught a bow of white satin ribbon and greenery. Bows of white satin ribbon were attached at intervals to the pews.

Preceding the ceremony read at 8:30 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. J. B. Holloway, Mrs. Cecil Davis played a half-hour program of wedding music including "On Promise Me," deKoven, "At Dawning," Cadman, "Liebestraum," Liszt, "In My Garden," Firestone, "Always," Berlin, "Through the Years," Yeomans, "In the Garden of Tomorrow," Deppen, "Sweetest Story Ever Told," Stults, "I Love You Truly," Bond, "Because," De Hardelot, "I Love Thee," Grieg. During the ceremony she played "Romance," by Rubenstein. After the couple repeated their vows Mrs. Eugene H. Moore sang "The Lord's Prayer," Malotte.

Escorted to the altar by her father, Miss Gracely wore a Tafel original gown of moonlight satin and duchess lace. The front panel of the gown was of lace, and the skirt, shirred at the hipline to form a rolled bustle, extended into a deep train. The fitted bodice had a net yoke in a drop-shoulder effect, outlined with an applique of lace in the back. Tiny satin buttons trimmed the back of the deep yoke and the long fitted sleeves. Appliques of the duchess lace outlined the edge of her veil of bridal illusion which fell from a rolled back cap. Her orchid-centered bridal bouquet held white roses and shattered chrysanthemums and she carried a Battenberg lace handkerchief made by her paternal aunt, Mrs. Harry G. Egley of Ocean Grove, N. J. The handkerchief was carried in a holder, an engraved gold ring to which was attached a small chain and another small gold ring. The holder, worn on her little finger, is an heirloom in the family of Mrs. Grant E. Mouser Jr., and was worn by her and also by her daughter, Mrs. Ardeshir B. Irani Jr., at their weddings. It belonged to the former's grandmother, Mrs. Victoria Kenyon Gorham.

Mrs. Rayl B. Conyers, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. W. Leonard Young, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. John E. Gracely, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Clarence O. Smeak Jr., of Hagerstown, Md., a roommate of the bride at Duke university, and Mrs. Ardeshir B. Irani Jr., of Washington, D. C.

The attendants' gowns, fashioned alike were of leaf green taffeta. A deep fold of the material outlined the low necklines to give an off-the shoulder effect. The full skirts, worn over hoops, extended from the fitted basques outlined at the low waistlines with deep graduated peplums extending in points in the back. Mrs. Conyers wore a Juliet cap of white baby mums and the bridesmaids wore half-halos of the same flowers across the backs of their heads. All wore white gloves and carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums with sprays of button pompons and puffs of white satin ribbon.

Milton S. Pohler of Kansas City, Mo., served as best man for his brother and ushers were the bride's brothers, John E. Gracely and William H. Gracely, her brother-in-law, Rayl B. Conyers, W. Leonard Young, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, William H. Foster of Marion and John Beicher of Lancaster.

Mrs. Merle Hughes, wearing a white silk chiffon dress, lighted the candles.

A reception followed at the Gracely home. The receiving line was in front of the fireplace in the livingroom where vases of white chrysanthemums and greenery were used. Mrs. Gracely wore a gown of midnight blue chiffon velvet and the bridegroom's mother was costumed in an aqua blue crepe gown. Both wore shoulder corsages of lavender orchids.

On the table in the diningroom was a low wicker basket filled with white chrysanthemums and caught to the handle was a large bow of white satin ribbon. Crystal candlesticks held the tall white tapers. The tiered bride's cake was decorated with a miniature Colonial bouquet of white roses and pompons showered with white satin ribbon and surrounded with pompons and greenery. Chrysanthemums were in a wicker basket on the buffet and were used in the bouquets throughout the rooms.

Assisting were Mrs. Walter E. Hane, Mrs. Ray R. King, Mrs. Henry A. Mickley, Mrs. Merle Hamilton, Mrs. George Alber, Mrs. J. Malcolm Stuelitz, Mrs. Merle Hughes, Mrs. C. G. Smith, Mrs. Frank M. Foster, Mrs. Grant E. Mouser Jr., Mrs. Clarence L. Rutherford, Miss Amy Turner, Miss Elizabeth Gray of Marion, Mrs. Harry Nichols of Toledo, Mrs. Milton S. Pohler of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. George Goodrich and Mrs. Clarence Rohrer of Hagerstown, Md. and Mrs. John Beicher of Lancaster.

For her going away costume the bride chose an original model of mulberry crepe made with a high neckline and a side drape, with which she wore a black hat and accessories. Pinned to her gray Chinese kidskin fur coat was the orchid from her wedding bouquet.

Both Mr. Pohler and his bride are graduates of Harding High school. Mrs. Pohler was graduated from Duke university where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority and while there was a member of White Duchy, senior honorary campus organization. During World War II she was in Washington, D. C. where she was engaged in engineering work in naval architecture for the U. S. Navy. Mr. Pohler was graduated from Ohio university and served with the U. S. Army four and one half years during World War II. He is office manager of the Quaker Oats Co. plant here.

Upon their return from a wedding trip the couple will make their home in Marion.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rohrer, Mrs. George Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Smeak Jr. of Hagerstown, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Nichols of Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. Clifton M. Howard of Corry, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Manz of Indianapolis, Ind., Mrs. C. A. Albrecht, Miss Helen Albrecht, Mrs. Jessie Houk, Mrs. Carrie Ryder of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Albrecht of Greenville, Miss Winifred Faye of Cleveland; Misses Elizabeth and Laura Pohler of Tulsa, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Klepper of Meadville, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Atherholt of Monroe, Mich.; Mrs. George Main of Sunbury; Mr. and Mrs. John Beicher of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Smith of Rockford, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Milton S. Pohler of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Ardeshir B. Irani Jr., of Washington, D. C.; Rollin Waite of Macedonia.

On Saturday Miss Gracely entertained her attendants at luncheon at Hotel Harding. For the table decoration she chose a bride standing in a bower of greenery and holding showers of white ribbon leading to the place favors which were treasure chests bearing the names of the guests. In the chests were gifts of Indian silver band bracelets.

Mr. and Mrs. Gracely were hosts at a buffet supper following the wedding rehearsal Saturday evening at their home.

Marion Driver Sets New Auto Track Mark

Pete Hoper, Ohio race driver, broke eight existing records for a half mile track by driving a semi-stock Young-Key Special 220 Mercury around the Cleveland, Mich. track in 23.4 seconds in a qualification race yesterday. Old record was 23.7 seconds.

Hoper won the first elimination, the helmet dash, and the feature race, and finished second in the Australian chase to cop most of the top honors.

He was leading in the feature race when an accident forced the race to stop in the twelfth lap.

Your Good Health

If Pain Around Shoulder Is Felt.

Around the shoulder is a sac containing fluid known as the subacromial bursa, whose function is to cushion the movement of the joint in this area and keep the bones from grating or grinding when we use them. Sometimes, however, this bursa becomes inflamed and then, instead of assisting movement, it impedes it, causing tenderness around the shoulder and pain when the arm is lifted or rotated outward.

During recent years an increasing number of instances of pain around the shoulder due to this cause have been noted. The condition is called subacromial bursitis and it is believed that injury accounts for the inflammation in most cases. It may however, develop because of infections elsewhere in the body, as in the roots of the teeth, the tonsils or the sinuses.

The symptoms of subacromial bursitis consist of tenderness around the shoulder and some pain on the movement of the arm. The patient usually raises his arm in a jerky fashion until it is at a right angle to the trunk. There is also spasm of the muscle.

As the condition continues the pain increases when any attempt is made to raise the arm beyond a right angle. Movement of the arm is restricted, and the pain at times may be so severe as to interfere with sleep and normal activities.

In addition, the X-ray will show some changes in the head of the bone in the upper arm, known as the humerus. It becomes irregular in outline and often there are deposits of calcium or lime salts in the tissues around the shoulder.

Deposits of lime salts represent Nature's attempt to heal the injury or inflammation of the bursa. The calcium deposit varies in size from fine granules to large deposits, which may fill the bursal sac. In some instances, it is possible to aspirate or draw out some of these calcium deposits.

Insofar as treatment of subacromial bursitis is concerned, a number of methods have been suggested. Often, complete rest is of benefit. Washing out of the bursa with salt solution may be of value in some cases. Puncturing the bursa itself may often give relief from pain. X-ray treatment will relieve the acute pain almost immediately in many instances.

When pain around the shoulder occurs, examination with X-ray should always be made to determine if the condition is due to bursitis; then the most effective treatment may be carried out.

TWO MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS MISSING IN NEW MEXICO

By The Associated Press

SANTA Fe, N. M., Oct. 27—Military authorities and state police waited early today for radioed word from rescuers sent up snow-capped South Truchas peak to learn the fate of two missing women mountain climbers

The two, employed as secretaries at the atomic energy commission's Los Alamos project, were identified as Frances B. Krauss, 34-year-old former WAC from Baltimore, and Mildred Hartle, from Evansville, Ind.

Residents in the village of Truchas, 40 miles northeast of Santa Fe by highway, said the women stopped there Saturday to pick up a guide and announced their intention to scael the 13,-275-foot peak, loftiest in New Mexico.

REPORT SEES CHAOS OVER FOOD SHORTAGE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 — An international emergency food council report said today the twin problems of food and dollar shortages abroad could result in world "economic collapse, if not chaos."

The report said world food production this crop year will be slightly below last year's skimpy output and appreciably below prewar. It added that the decline is serious because there are 200,000,000, or eight per cent, more people to feed now than before the war.

Per capita food supplies for this crop year, which ends next June 30, will be two or three per cent below last year's level and nearly 10 per cent below prewar production, the report said

It emphasized, however, that the change from perwar levels of food consumption has not been uniform. Supplies this crop year were said to vary country by country from as much as 35 per cent below to as much as 15 per cent above.

Reporting that bad weather was responsible for the drop in this year's food production, Fitzgerald said "unprecedented efforts—national and international—will be required if the mounting crisis is to be successfully weathered."

He told the council there seems little prospect that the world can work its way completely out of its food difficulties, particularly its shortages of cereals, for some years to come.

HIGHER MEAT PRICES PREDICTED FOR 1948

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—The agriculture department today forecast even higher meat prices next year despite President Truman's voluntary conservation campaign to bring down food costs and provide additional relief for Europe.

In its monthly report on the livestock situation, the department predicted that "unusually" strong consumer demand coupled with a shortage of meat will boost prices in 1948 above the present high levels.

The forecast came as food conservation chief Charles Luckman awaited reports from local citizens' food committees throughout the country on results of the food-saving drive.

SENATOR AND HORSE START "PEACE" TOUR

By The Associated Press

SANTA ANA, Calif., Oct. 27—Sen. Glen H. Taylor was a "joggin' along on his h'l ol' roan hoss today, headin' eastward on the first leg of what he proclaimed as a speaking tour in behalf of world peace.

The 43-year-old Idaho Democrat, a former cowhand and better than average as a horseman and a guitar player, left Seal Beach, Calif., late yesterday after an impromptu concert on the strand, attended by several score admirers, young and old.

His first stop was Santa Ana, some 20 miles from Seal Beach. Police reported he halted here for dinner, but said they didn't know where he tied up his horse in this town where every street anywhere near the business district is bestudded with auto parking meters.

Before leaving Seal Beach, Senator Taylor said he planned to ride three white horses (alternately) on a tour of the nation's southern half. He would ride one, he said, while the other two were resting in a trailer drawn by a car driven by his wife

But he started yesterday with only two horses, neither of them white.

OPPOSITION LEADER OF POLAND VANISHES

By The Associated Press

WARSAW, Oct. 27 — Mystery veiled the whereabouts today of Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Polish opposition leader, whose own newspaper announced yesterday that he had "fled abroad"—apparently in fear of internment or even death at the hands of the Communist-dominated Polish regime.

Mikolajczyk's Polish Peasant party followers—stunned by their leader's disappearance—predicted that his departure would spell "the end" of any organized opposition to the Soviet-supported government of Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz

The Peasant party leader, who has been under steady attack for the past few months by pro-government political parties and newspapers, recently said he expected to be arrested and share the fate of Nikola Petkov—Bulgarian peasant leader hanged last month for "treason."

Poland Tries To Salvage "War-Monger" Proposal

By The Associated Press

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 27—Poland today attempted to save Russia's anti-"war-monger" proposal from defeat by moving formally to eliminate from it any direct reference to alleged "war-mongering" in the United States, Greece and Turkey.

The Polish compromise move came shortly after France, Australia and Canada laid a new joint proposal before the United Nations assembly's 57-member political committee as an alternate to the Soviet proposal.

Despite the Polish amendment, there appeared little chance that the Soviet resolution would obtain any major support.

Galion Strike Parley Opens

Galion plant for more than nine hours.

It brought an uneasy truce by which the company agreed not to reopen the plant and the union promised safe passage to the imprisoned workers, many of whom were women.

The question of the strike was the principal topic of conversation on the streets of the city this morning. Everything was orderly, however, as the conference got under way.

Elaborate precautions had been taken to see that the conferees were not molested. The main entrance to the city hall was closed and guarded. The only means of entrance to the building was through the door leading to the police department. This door also was guarded by about a dozen officers.

Outside the city hall sheriff's department cars from Crawford, Marion and Morrow counties were lined up. A number of deputies from these counties also were on hand.

Mt. Gilead Meeting Set

Meanwhile, Duck, Mansfield-Galion area international representative of the UAW and leader of the nine-week old strike called members and sympathizers to meet at Mt. Gilead tonight at 8 p. m. to hear the outcome of the talks.

At a 2 a. m. conference in city hall today, Mayor William Amann told Col. R. V. Graham of the Ohio adjutant general's office that the city police force of 7 patrolmen and 6 special officers was inadequate to cope with any situation that might arise.

Sheriff In Charge

The mayor said Crawford County Sheriff Ralph Schreck had been placed in full charge of the protection force. This development was announced after Col. Graham asked the mayor (1) if he could handle the situation and (2) if any plan of operation had been drawn up in case of a possible crisis?

The sheriff, who has three regular deputies and 27 special officers available, named Police Chief James L. Walker second in command. He will handle the situation outside the immediate area of the plant..

Attending the 2 a. m conference was Mayor Amann, Sheriff Schreck, Col. Graham and Chief Walker.

Although the meeting of company and union officials was scheduled to be held in the city hall, the area of the plant was blocked off. Robert K. McBerty, vice president of the company, which makes telephone equipment, said he had no plans to reopen the factory.

Closing the factory at least until today's meeting was one term of the truce reached early Thursday morning to let 350 non-strikers out of the building after 12 hours, during which pickets and sympathizers gathered outside.

Jamison, company counsel, emphasized then that today's meeting did not necessarily mean the company was agreeing to arbitrate the union's demands for recognition and a 20 per cent wage increase.

Governor Ready to Help

Gov Thomas J. Herbert yesterday said he was "looking for the mayor and the sheriff to keep their own peace," but added he was ready "to take whatever steps necessary" if the peace were broken.

Gov. Herbert said he had "no intention of letting law enforcement fall down; if they fail, I shall take whatever steps are necessary even if it means removal of the mayor and direct orders to the sheriff to use his authority."

Gov. Herbert said in his daily news conference at Columbus that he was ready to offer the services of the state industrial commission as an arbitration and conciliation agency in the dispute if necessary

The executive added he had been asked by Richard Gosser, regional director of the UAW-CIO organization in Toledo, and Robert Jamison of Cleveland, attorney for the company, to lend the state's assistance in settling the dispute.

Basis of Strike

The strikers are asking wage increases and union recognition.

The company policy, as stated by its solicitor, has been to refuse to negotiate until the matter of signing anti-Communist affidavits have been cleared up.

Duck warned that union leaders would "not be responsible for the consequences if the company does not agree to arbitration"

The UAW called a strike at the plant Aug. 20. Last week a band of armed, masked men forced entry into the company's Kenton plant, which was not struck, and damaged costly machinery. The UAW denied having any part in the vandalism.

The next day more than 100 UAW pickets from a number of Ohio cities massed around the Galion plant and kept 375 workers from leaving it until the truce was arranged by Col. Graham.

Ministers Make Appeal

Galion ministers yesterday appealed to their congregations to "remain calm, think clearly and let your conduct be governed by prayer" in the face of the city's emergency.

About half the 250 workers in the company's plant at Mt. Gilead, where Duck scheduled his meeting tonight, have been laid off because of a shortage of parts from the main plant in Galion, officials at the Morrow county seat 14 miles south of here reported.

The UAW started picketing the Mt. Gilead plant, which makes the final assembly of telephones, early in the dispute starting Aug. 20, but three weeks ago Common Pleas Judge Leland Rutherford granted the company an injunction limiting pickets to five at the main gate.

However, this plant has not been picketed at all since the injunction was issued.

The 8 p. m. meeting at Mt. Gilead today will be held in the courthouse annex. Employes of the plant there have been informed the purpose of the meeting is to discuss the issues and present all the facts in the case. It was reported in Mt. Gilead the meeting had been arranged before the incident of the plant siege in Galion last Wednesday.

A proposal was called off this morning by employes of the Mt. Gilead plant to hold a prayer service about the time the Galion 11 a. m. conference was to open today. The prayer service was announced in all Mt. Gilead churches yesterday but at the North Electric plant this morning it was reported the affair had been canceled.

Circulate Petitions

Galion citizens circulated petitions today asking for removal of top city and county officials.

The petitions which will be forwarded to Gov. Herbert if sufficient signatures are obtained charged Mayor Amann, Police Chief Walker and Crawford County Sheriff Shreck with "failure to carry out their duties and apparent unwillingness to safeguard people and property."

The action followed the siege of the plant last Wednesday by union pickets.

Galion's annual mardi gras celebration tomorrow night was canceled because the committee for the event feared strike violence.

Cancellation of the mardi gras brought a prompt plea from Edward J. Duck, union leader for the committee to reconsider its action.

Tql trEeignt-houranantheh in a Scarbrough post, American Legion, and the Fraternal Order of Police, co-sponsors, announced cancellation of the mardi gras "because of the emergency" and as "protection to wives and children."

Wants Masks Avoided

Fearful lest violence break out again in the bitter labor dispute between the United Auto Workers (CIO) and the North Electric Co., Mayor Amann "urgently requested" that no one appear on the streets wearing masks during the Halloween season. Usually the mardi gras attracts five to six thousand persons each year to Galion.

Duck said, "We earnestly request that the mardi gras committee reconsider its decision not to hold the mardi gras parade and we feel there is absolutely no reason for the children of the community being cheated out of their holiday fun. We further charge that this entire statement by the parade committee is made for the purpose of stirring up the women and children of the community and turning them against the union.

90 EXECUTIVES MEET TO DISCUSS AID PLAN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—The White House called in some 90 leaders of business and organized labor today for an off-the-record study of ways to help Europe without forcing prices at home still higher.

At the same time, two senators who usually disagree on foreign policy matters voiced hope that the special session of congress set for Nov. 17 will limit its work to emergency assistance and leave the multi-billion dollar long-range Marshall plan to the regular session.

This view came from the veteran Senator Tom Connally (D-Tex), former chairman of the foreign relations committee, and freshman Senator George Malone (R-Nev), who voted against most of the foreign policy issues Connally supported last session.

"If we try to debate the so-called long range Marshall plan, we'll never get through," Connally told a reporter. "I think congress will be in a mood to give prompt attention to any stopgap plan and pass it."

Unless this is done, Connally said, the "special session probably will just run along for six weeks right into the regular January meeting."

Today's White House session was called by Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman. Whether Mr. Truman would attend along with Secretary of State Marshall, Secretary of Commerce Harriman, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson and other government officials was left open.

Shipload of Immigrants From Baltics Arrives

By The Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. 27—Immigration authorities kept watch today over a party of eight Estonians and 16 Latvians aboard the 54-foot auxiliary schooner "Svea" who hoped they would be permitted to remain the United States.

The party arrived yesterday after a 5,000-mile trip from Sweden, which they began last Aug. 31. Among them were 13 men, five women and six children, led by Capt. Peteris Licis.

All members of the party were in good condition and the ship was remarkably clean both above and below decks, according to C. H. Whorrell, officer in charge of the U. S. immigration and naturalization office here.

Whorrell said hearings would be held here unless ordered held elsewhere. The refugees were not allowed to go ashore.

It was the fifth party of refugees to reach Florida from northern Europe in the past 15 months.

Alleges 100 Exhibits

Stripling said he also has over 100 exhibits "showing Mr. Lawson's affiliation with the Communist party."

When Lawson was called as a witness, his attorney, Robert W. Kenny, renewed a challenge, first made last week, of the committee's authority to issue a subpoena (summons to appear and testify) for Lawson and 18 other Hollywood figures.

The committee, after a huddle in a closed-door session, overruled Kenny's challenge and called Lawson to the stand

Lawson, a huge man, asked to be allowed to read a statement.

"Let me see it," Thomas replied

The chairman glanced briefly at the statement and handed it back

"The statement will not be read," Thomas said He added that it "is not pertinent" to the investigation.

Lawson started protesting about violation of "the rights of American citizens.

Stripling began the questioning of Lawson, asking him wether he is a member of the Screen Writers Guild.

"Beyond Committee's Authority.

"The raising of any question of affiliation or political belief is a matter beyond the power of this committee," Lawson replied heatedly, "but it is a matter of record that I am a member of the guild

Then came the questions as to past or present Communist membership and Lawson's refusal to answer.

Lawson was named by Howard Rushmore, New York newspaperman, in testimony last week at one of the directors of Communist activities in Hollywood Rushmore said he himself was formerly a Communist.

In the audience was a group of 25 film personalities, led by Humphrey Bogart, who came to the capitol to protest the course of the committee's investigation

The star-studded party arrived by chartered plane late last night and held a midnight news conference at which Director John Huston emphasized that members had no intention of creating a scene before the house committee on un-American activities, starting the second week of its "Reds in-Hollywood hearings.

They intend, Huston said, to talk to individual members of congress in an effort to "correct the abuses" they claim have been inherent in the committee's investigation.

"We hope eventually to see this committee legislated out of existence," Huston declared.

None of the group is among the two-score movie figures subpoenaed for the hearings, but members said they would be available as witnesses if the committee chose to call them.

The committee took no formal notice of the new arrivals—hastily organized into the Committee for the First Amendment—and said no special arrangements had been made to accommodate them.

2,000 TO BE INVITED TO ROYAL WEDDING

By The Associated Press

LONDON Oct. 27 — Britain's royal family, after much planning and worrying over many guest exclusions, has finally made up its mind about Princess Elizabeth's wedding guests and issued the coveted invitations to the 2,000 of the elect. It was announced today.

Invitations the royal household went out piecemeal after combing through colossal lists of eligibles, knowing that in these times the number of persons that can be fitted into Westminster Abbey needed to be kept down to manageable grade and that widespread disappointment was inevitable.

The list went out piecemeal because of the news blackout imposed by Neville Chamberlain's department which is in charge of this phase of the wedding preparations.

Even today even the style of the invitations was an official secret. All that can be told that the invitation is a copper-plate engraved card measuring five by six inches with the royal arms at the top, the text following

The lord chamberlain is commanded by their majesties to invite ... and lines open for the name of the lucky person to the ceremony of the marriage of her royal highness the Princess Elizabeth C.I. (These initials denoting the imperial order of the crown of India which she was recently awarded) with Lieutenant Philip Mountbatten, Royal Navy, in Westminster Abbey on Thursday, 20th November, 1947, at 11:30 o'clock a.m.

REVIVAL SERVICE ENDS AT CALVARY CHURCH

Revival services at Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church closed with services yesterday, with good attendance reported both morning and evening. Rev. Lewis H. Naumann of Canton was evangelist for the two-week meeting. Singing was directed by Elmer Harruff, with Mrs. J. W. Baker at the piano. At the morning service yesterday the choir sang, and in the evening a quartet was composed of Charles Feaver, M. Harruff, Leroy Stull and Paul Zachman. Harry Mauk, Ronald Shuler and Walter Collins offered prayer.

In the morning service Rev. Naumann said in part, "Just because we need the newer experience of the fullness of the spirit in our lives does not unChristianize us. It takes patience to win converts to Christ. We must surround them with influence by which they will know we are interested in them. You are converted that you might lay hold of the responsibility of the church, to pray with the people of the church and to work together. A man can not do it if he is unwilling to give himself for the sake of the whole body of Christ. You would not feel so good about you pastor if he did not pay attention to the afterwards of your Christian experience. This world is only going to be turned toward God by men who are seeking to bring people out of darkness into the experience of conversion or I am willing [illegible] and they [illegible] hear."

In the evening Rev. Naumann said Salvation is big enough to read the whole world. The fact that a woman can be changed is evidence of the power of God. We can't neglect our salvation by failure to be loyal to the church, by refusing to take responsibility of the church by refusing to be filled with the spirit."

REV. MAX GOOD SPEAKS AT RELIGIOUS SERVICES

At the Youth for Christ meeting Saturday night at the Masonic temple, Rev. Max Good of Souls Harbor, Columbus, was the special speaker. More than 200 attended.

Music included an accordion duet by Rev. R. A. Maugans and Dr. Clem Hershey. Their number was "There Is Power in the Blood." Patsy and Peggy Frey of Caledonia sang "There Is No Friend Like Jesus." They were accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Baker. Rev. Maugans sang "The Calvary Road," accompanied by Mrs. Baker. Pianists were Mrs. J. W. Baker and Miss Louise Caldwell.

Richard B. Morris of Marion and S. B. Higgins of Atlanta, Ga., gave testimonies.

At the November meeting, Phil Hinaman of East Liverpool, will be the special speaker.

Rev. Good declared "Liberty is the one thing the whole world prizes above everything else. If you want the smile of God upon you, life, and if you want the thing you are looking for in life you will find it a whole lot quicker if you stay in the will of God. The majority of the people you know are not free men and women, but are captives of sin. There is only one way to reach these folks, and that is with the message of Jesus Christ. You cannot save yourself."

1 O'CLOCK QUOTATIONS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—Scattered stocks exhibited mild rising tendencies in today's market while many leaders continued to slip.

The financial sector will was optimistic regarding business generally but many customers held aloof or trimmed accounts because of doubts regarding what may happen at the forthcoming special session of congress.

Ahead at intervals were Graham-Paige, Bethlehem Steel, Boeing, Sperry, North American, Standard Oil (NJ), Texas Co., Santa Fe, Northern Pacific and Baltimore and Ohio.

Occasional losers included Republic Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodrich, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Kennecott, Philip Morris, Eversharp and N. Y. Central.

Welcome Showers Fall In Mississippi Valley

By The Associated Press

Welcome showers ranging from moderate to heavy have fallen throughout most of the Mississippi valley and as far west as Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas where some wheatland subsoil had been reported in need of moisture.

The Chicago weather bureau said the rain, moving eastward across Indiana and Michigan today, had left as much as an inch or more of moisture at scattered points in Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas.

The temperatures over the nation, however, were normal or above normal for this season, the weather bureau said, adding that low readings early today generally were above the frost line.

Reuther Denies Charge He Advised Speedup

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27 — A charge by a fellow union member that he had advocated a "speed-up" in the automobile industry were termed "phony and untrue" by President Walter P. Reuther of the CIO-United Auto Workers last night.

The union president told a meeting of some 1,200 UAW members that the accusation by Leo Fenster, an official of the union's Local 45 at the Fisher Body plant here, was part of "a well organized national campaign of villification and character assassination" against him.

Fenster, a member of the union's anti-Reuther bloc, asserted at the meeting that Reuther had issued two statements to the national planning association approving speedups in major automobile plants.

PROFIT-SHARING IS DROPPED BY GE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—The General Electric Company has decided to abolish its profit-sharing plan whereby it distributed $3,000,000 among its 160,000 employes earlier this year, a company spokesman said today.

The spokesman stated that loss of the profit-sharing plan would be compensated for by a new pension system, undertaken at an initial cost of $40,000,000 and calling for the distribution of approximately $16,000,000 annually among employes.

Charles E. Wilson, president of the company, said in discussing discontinuance of the 13-year-old profit-sharing plan that no change was contemplated in the "extra compensation" plan for General Electric executives.

Wilson said the profit-sharing program for production workers "no longer served its purpose" of promoting employe interest in the welfare of the business. The extra compensation plan, he contended, did serve as an incentive to executives to enhance the prosperity of the company.

The company's decision was formally protested by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) which represents General Electrical production employes.

Many more could be cited.

As for the farmer getting 70 cents of the consumer's dollar; that may be true on a very few items such as eggs and butter at certain times But then, who is more entitled to it than the man who produces the food? But when the consumer pays 16 cents for a 12-ounce package of shredded wheat he is paying at the rate of 21 and one-third cents a pound while $3 a bushel wheat gives the farmer only five cents a pound, which, by the way, very few farmers get, since most of them have to sell at harvest time when the price to the farmer is usually depressed Allowing for the cost of processing and packing, there is still a big spread between what the farmer gets and what the consumer pays It can only be charged to profiteering. You can figure it out on the loaf of bread which just went up lately and any other item you wish to mention And $30 a hundredweight beef does not justify a dollar or a dollar and a quarter a pound steaks or 45 cent a pound hamburger

The farmers constitute a group which has absolutely no voice in setting the price on their products, as was exemplified this summer in New Jersey, where they were paid one cent a pound for their tomatoes while the New Yorkers had to pay 20 cents a pound. Naturally the cost of production for each farm varies very greatly, but when the cost on a large, modern, efficient farm is averaged up with that of the poor family farm we can easily see who is going to suffer.

Let us not forget that the farmer also is a consumer, not only of his own products but those of industry as well and his costs are also going up and up

It seems to me that the best thing the farmers can do is to get closer to the organized labor movement and through direct marketing of his product get a larger share of the consumers' dollar. In studying the records of the legislators we find that the same forces which fought against labor's welfare also fought against the bills favorable to the farmers. More and more closer cooperation between the farmers and the workers becomes a necessity if we are to survive as a democratic nation and beat back the forces of fascism, so that we may collectively enjoy the fruits of the richest nation in the world

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

GEORGES, fugitive exiled king of Trees, did not turn his head at Harry Underwood's gibing announcement that he would have a half hour more for his letter to Olina, but went steadily on with his writing, throwing a perfunctory: "Thank you, that is good," over his shoulder.

Harry permitted himself another gram, this time at the rest of us, and then my father began to speak again, in muted tones

"How will you manage to get Phil up to your apartment without arousing Olina's suspicions?" he asked.

"Easily," Dicky returned. "Olina knows about the expedition to South America, and its connection with Otto's devilish schemes. We'll say that you have news about it. But, in that case, I don't very well see how we're going to have Phil come down without Olga."

"You can't," my father said decisively. "Ask them both to come down. But will that leave Olina alone in the apartment?"

'She has been alone there many times before," I said "But this time Noel will be there. He is staying at the Philip Veritzens during Mary's illness.

My eyes were watching Georges a bit uneasily as I spoke. He stopped writing and swung around, facing us.

"But that should not be!" he asserted hotly. "I have not forgotten that Noel and Olina were once betrothed."

'Then you are the only one who remembers," Dicky told him. "Both Noel and Olina have things far more important on their minds than that old youthful international romance between Noel and Olina, and you and Mary. You can bet Mary is too much absorbed in her work, as well as too much in love with her husband, to have any memories of that old time except mirthful ones.

"Let a tottering octogenarian advise you, Georges," Dicky went on "not to be any more of an anointed ass than God made you. Go back to your letter writing, and don't worry about Olina being left alone with Noel. Both her constancy and Noel's are inviolable."

Dicky's voice held such thinly veiled content that I could not blame Georges for springing from his chair.

"You are insulting me!" he declared fiercely.

"Far from it," Dicky returned, in the fatigued voice he affects sometimes. "Simply advising you"

"Georges!" my father broke in sharply. "You are wasting precious time!"

As though he were a small boy reproved by a school teacher, Georges whirled, and seated himself again. But he shot a malevolent glance at Dicky before he turned, and I guessed that he would not soon forget—or forgive—my husband's gibes.

That Dicky cared no whit for his reaction, I knew when he winked sardonically at me as Georges bent to his writing again. I shook my head reprovingly at him, but Harry and Lillian were concealing their mirth with difficulty, and, to my surprise, I saw the semblance of a smile twitching my father's lips, mirrored also in Mr. "K's" eyes, as the "Chief" resumed the instructions which Georges had interrupted with his jealous comment.

"Better acquaint Phil and Olga fully with the situation," my father said, "so that they can make plans for the secret wedding camouflaged by the house party which you and Richard will stage

"Phil will know how to make the thing sound convincing to the press," he went on, "and you, Margaret, and Olga can work out the details together. Richard—"

"I'll be a most attractive fifth wheel," my husband said, and my father frowned at him.

"On the contrary, you'll be a most busy person. On you and 'K' will rest the responsibility for guarding the members of the party, and seeing that no hint of the real reason for their presence at Sag Harbor leaks out"

"I am yours to command, 'K,'" Dicky said, with a grin which the F.B.I. man returned, and then my father gave another command.

"Katharine will accompany you to the farm when you make the trip which will be announced in the press," he said, but even as my pulses thrilled at the prospect of having my kinswoman at my right hand in the busy, trying days to come, my worried compunctions found voice.

"But that will leave Mother Graham alone in the hospital with no one to come to see her," I protested.

"GAG RULE" ON VA BLASTED BY EDITORS

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27 — The state, war and navy department coordinating committee drew the fire of the American Society of Newspaper Editors today for proposing what the editors described as a "gag rule" on release of information by federal civilian agencies.

A resolution passed by the board of directors of the ASNE here yesterday asserted that the committee's security and advisory board went "far beyond any reasonable exercise of its authority" in implementing the President's loyalty order of last March by drawing up regulations which would "place even the ordinary affairs of federal civilian agencies beyond public scrutiny"

These regulations are contained in a directive to the veterans administration and are so phrased that they "could be used to deprive the public of information to which it is entitled" by putting up "an effective screen ..about government operations behind which many evils could flourish without detection," the resolution said.

The directive to the VA, the resolution declared, "classifies as confidential all information the unauthorized disclosure of which, although not endangering the national security, would be prejudicial to the interests of prestige of the nation, any governmental activity, or an individual, or would cause administrative embarrassment or difficulty"

The editors urged President Truman "to nullify the VA gag rule and to strike any such rule out of the regulations for other departments."

Picketing of Homes Forbidden by Courts

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27—A man's home is still his castle, the Eighth Ohio district court of appeals has ruled, upholding a common pleas decision picketing of homes was an "unwarranted extension of the allowable area of economic conflict."

Common Pleas Judge Frank S Day issued a permanent injunction last July 25 restraining the International Association of Machinists (independent) officers from picketing homes of non-striking employes of the Pipe Machinery Co.

The strike at the Pipe Machinery Co began last Feb. 17 and burst into violence after a back-to-work movement May 12 Pickets marched in front of non-strikers' homes carrying signs reading "A scab lives here," "Know who your neighbor is," and the like.

Marion Angels Edged, 13-7, by Sheridan

Cabbies Open Scoring With Sleeper Play But Merchants Take To Air To Win Tilt

The Marion Safety Cab Angels were edged, 13-7, by the Sheridan (Ind.) Merchants in a tough contest before 1,500 fans at Harding stadium Saturday night.

Electrifying the crowd on the third play of the game, the Cabbies Leo Belknap dropped back to his own 30-yard line and tossed a long pass to Max Roseberry "sleeping" near the sidelines. The Marion line formed interference and chopped down Sheridan tacklers as Roseberry scampered 65 yards to score the first touchdown of the game. Cheney kicked the extra point.

Field Goal Misses

Later in the quarter, Belknap intercepted a pass from Sheridan quarterback, Wallace, on the Angels' 25 and galloped to the Sheridan 34 behind beautiful interference. He was pulled down from behind by Sheridan's Edie and Pearson. Simmons passed to Richardson on the 14, a five-yard penalty moved the Angels back to the 20, and Ivey advanced to the 10 in two tries through the line. With Reams holding the ball on the 22, Cheney attempted a field goal, but it was wide of the uprights.

Sheridan scored in the second quarter after Bob Ivey punted to Knight on Marion's 33. After an exchange of penalties, McLinn tossed a 30-yard aerial to Bush in the end zone, which was not good but officials ruled interference and placed the ball on the four. Brackett crashed through center to the one, and McLinn went around end to score. McLinn's kick for the extra point was blocked as the half ended.

Chance Comes in 3rd

A second Sheridan score was nearly set up in the third quarter when Bob Ivey fumbled and Waitt recovered on the Marion 25. But the Angels held and took over. A few plays later, McLinn again intercepted an Angel pass and ran back to the locals' 10 where he was caught by Gilmore and Lewis. McLinn tossed to Bush in the end zone for the second Merchant tally. Dodd's conversion made the score 13-7.

With both sides holding their own in the final quarter, a Simmons pass was intercepted by McLinn on the Angel 30, and McLinn galloped over for a touchdown only to have the play called back for a five-yard penalty.

The game ended before the next play could get under way.

FIELD OF UNBEATEN GRIDDERS NARROWS

Army, California, Baylor, Illinois Tumble from Ranks.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
A. P. Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—You could count the major all-victorious football teams on the fingers of your two hands today and if you try the same calculation after the season passes the halfway mark next Saturday there probably will be a spare digit or two.

The biggest shock of last week's wave of surprises was Columbia's 21-20 triumph over Army, a team that had gone through 32 games since 1943 without defeat.

But, if the cadets from West Point are in need of consolation, they can find it in the fact many others on last Saturday's list of favorites were subjected to the same indignities.

California, Baylor, Wake Forest and West Virginia were mauled rudely from the all-victorious ranks and Illinois, unbeaten but once-tied, saw its hopes for another Big Nine title all but disappear in a 14-7 loss to Purdue.

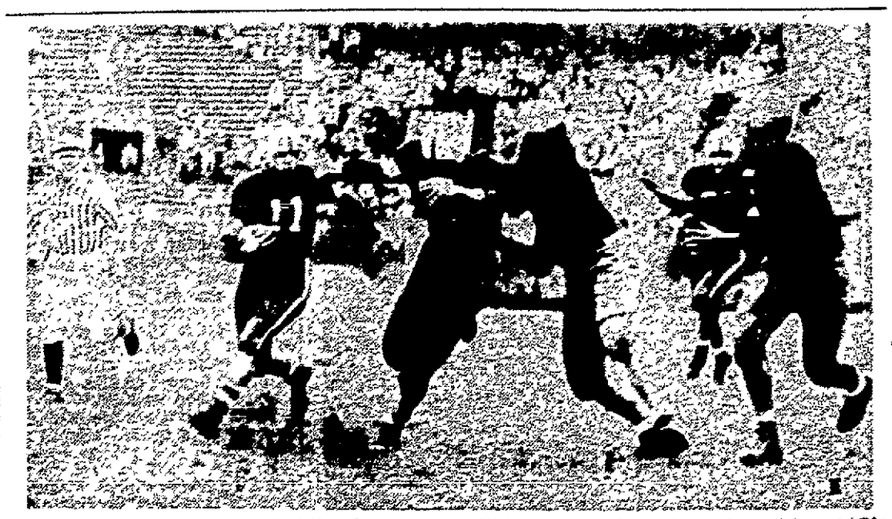
Both Illinois and Baylor were the victims of clear-cut upsets, as were such favorites as Harvard, Indiana, Mississippi, Ohio State and Oklahoma A. and M.

Out of the wreckage, Texas, Michigan, Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Pennsylvania, Penn State, Southern Methodist, Utah and Virginia emerged as the only major outfits still owning perfect marks, while Duke and Southern California remained undefeated but once-tied.

That list is due for further trimming when Texas, which blanked Rice, 12-0, collides with Southern Methodist, 7-0 winner over UCLA, at Dallas; and Duke, which ended Wake Forest's dreams, 16-6, invades Georgia Tech, 38-0 winner over the Citadel.

Michigan squeaked past Minnesota, 13-6, and will catch Illinois on the rebound Saturday at Champaign. Notre Dame, which made it four straight with a 21-0 conquest of Iowa, takes on Navy at Cleveland. Northwestern, buoyed by a 7-6 win over Indiana, entertains Wisconsin, while Iowa goes to Purdue and Indiana to Ohio State for other Big Nine tussles.

Pittsburgh, 12-0 upsetter of Ohio State, invades Minnesota.



OHIO STATE BOWS TO PITT. Bob Brugge of Ohio State finds himself hemmed in by a mass of Panther players as Pitt ran over the Buckeyes, 12-0 at Pittsburgh. It was homecoming day at Pitt and the team responded by ending a long string of "Big Nine" defeats before a crowd of 55,000. (International Soundphoto.)

Army's Morale Suffered No Drop, Coach States

By The United Press

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 27—Coach Earl Blaik said today that there was no difference in the morale of the Army team now that the four-year victory streak has ended, simply because the team was never concerned about the record in the first place.

Looking over an uninjured squad after the stunning 21-20 upset loss to Columbia Saturday, Blaik began pointing the team for Washington and Lee, Army's opponent Saturday.

"We'll go on, playing each game from week to week, just as we always do," Blaik said.

"I know there was a lot of talk about pressure, but I think most of the pressure was on our supporters and our opponents.

"I never noticed the team showing any great concern for the undefeated record."

Gene Rossides' passing and Bill Swiacki's receiving for Columbia ended the Army record at 32 straight games without a loss. Blaik said "Rossides is one of the best—and Swiacki is the best."

FELLER BEATS MATES

By The United Press

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27—Bob Feller pitched against his own All-Star team here yesterday and paced the Pacific Coast stars to a 6-4 victory in an exhibition baseball game.

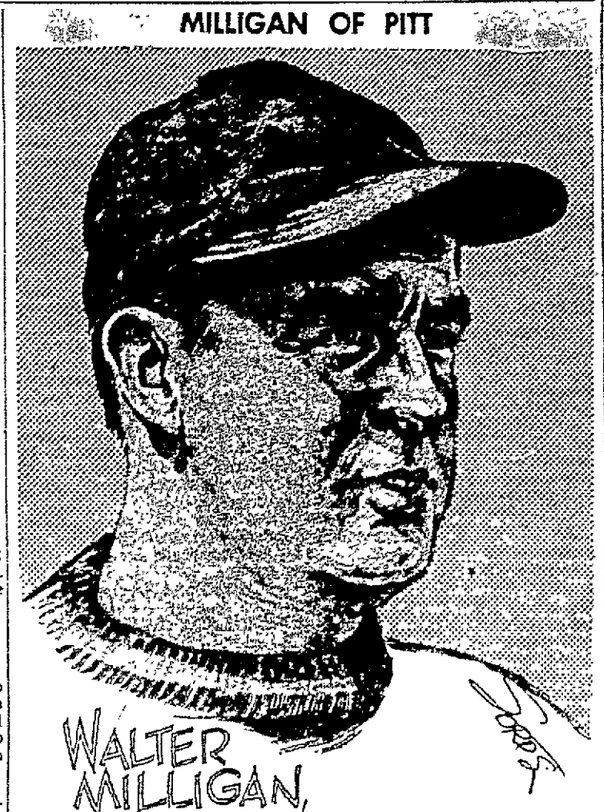
MILLIGAN OF PITT



Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—When the score of Columbia's amazing victory over Army was announced during the dull Penn-Navy tussle Saturday, a New York writer commented: "Well, Lou Little has a job for another 18 years now." Actually it only has been since New Year's Day of 1934 that Lou has been riding along on the incredible triumph and the well deserved reputation for getting more out of less material than any other coach in the business. Earl Blaik will be taking the Washington and Lee game very seriously and at the same time point ahead to Notre Dame. And, speaking of upsets, after Wes Fesler's remarks about where the downtown quarterbacks could go if they don't like his coaching, the road from Columbus, O., to the nether regions must be densely populated.

MORE THAN 4,000 reservations already have been granted for the American Bowling Congress tournament in Detroit starting in March and late requests are arriving at the rate of about 100 a week . . . Ted Budynkiewicz, a third string tackle for the "Irish", is finding it a bit tough to live up to the guys who preceded him to Notre Dame from Cathedral High in Springfield, Mass. They were Milt Piepul and Angelo Bertelli.

BOB NORTON, WHO played end for California in 1927-29 and Clarence Pautzke, who played against him for Washington a couple of times, are on a U. S. Fish and Wild Life service assignment together at Bikini.

BOWLING SCORES

C. Samples was really shooting high Monday night at the Palace Reception Center when he rolled the black ball down the alley for a 235 score in the single game and a three game series of 562. He made the Marion Power shovel league look pretty good. Three other keglers from the same league topped 200 or better but the nearest anyone could come to Samples was L. Williams with 222.

In the Sportsman league at the Palace Recreation Center, one man again took all honors for both the single and the series, J. Gorenflo scoring a 216 and a 587. Four other Sportsman league bowlers rolled 200 or better.

Sad Ohio State Showing Not Likely To Bring Buck Shake

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 27—The unhappy football fortunes of Ohio State university appeared unlikely today to give rise to any drastic shakeup of the battered Buckeyes as they began preparations to meet Indiana next Saturday.

"We'll just have to plug along with what we have," explained Coach Wes Fesler sadly.

Fesler offered no explanation for the Bucks' 12-0 beating at the hands of downtrodden Pittsburgh last Saturday but he did announce that, in the interests of having sound bodies to offer to the foe, the more strenuous forms of practice will be eliminated this week.

But, he said, the drills, while eschewing heavy scrimmage, will cover all phases of football.

As one Buck coach said: "We've got a young club; we've got to bring them along."

The sortie against Indiana next weekend will be the first for Ohio State since 1944 when the Hoosiers triumphed, 21-7, and it will be the Buckeyes third Big Nine opponent this year.

NAVY-IRISH GAME TOPS OHIO GRID CARD

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 27—Ohio colleges play a 21-game grid schedule next weekend, with one "Big Nine" and nine Ohio Conference contests included, but a couple of out-of-state squads will steal the spotlight.

The No. 1 game is the annual classic between Navy and Notre Dame at Cleveland's municipal stadium Saturday afternoon, expected to draw around 80,000 folks.

Strictly No. 2 is the Ohio State-Indiana western conference fray at Columbus, which will find the Bucks trying to get back on even keel after the devastating 12-0 upset at the hands of Pitt's Panthers.

This weekend might easily see the last of the state's "clean record" teams go down to defeat, for Findlay's Oilers, setting the pace with six wins in a row, are booked with Bowling Green's Falcons. The latter have won only three of six, but the comparative records may be tossed aside as these traditional rivals clash.

Denison, second-placer with five straight, meets a keyed-up Muskingum squad which saw its clean record sullied Saturday by a last-period field goal which gave Wooster's underdog Scots a 16-13 conquest. This is another fray in which a long rivalry will play a part.

Miami, tied but undefeated, moves over to Peoria, Ill., for a tilt with Bradley, and this one could oust the Redskins from the unbeaten sector despite the one-sided beating they gave the Illinois boys a year ago. Saturday Bradley romped all over North Dakota, 39 to 15.

HARDING TO COMMENCE CAGE PRACTICE TONIGHT

Harding High school basketball practice starts tonight in Edison Junior High school gym, Coach Kenny Somerlot announced today.

Practice will be held three times a week in the Edison gym until football season ends Nov. 14.

All boys not playing football are urged to come out for basketball. Coach Somerlot said he will not cut the squad until after football season ends and football players who want to go out for basketball have had a week or two of practice.

Two lettermen from last year's squad, forward Dick Riddle and guard Jimmy Rae, will start practice tonight. Three other lettermen, Jim Coss, Bob Short and Jim Hill, are now out for football.

Golfers Warm Up Today For Ryder Cup Matches

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 27—The stars of British and American professional golf were warming up today for the weekend test of skill in the seventh play of the international Ryder Cup matches.

Members of the challenging British team arrived this morning and most of the 10 United States' pro stars are expected by nightfall.

U. S. team captain Ben Hogan said last night the Pacific northwest's seasonal "heavy air" and the rain-sogged Portland golf club would slow any power drives this week.

Hogan and teammate E. J. "Dutch" Harrison stroked the 18-hole course yesterday as they opened their practice ahead of the others.

The weather forecast for continued rains this week would retain the course conditions familiar to British players.

Programs on the Air

The raid on a caravan 2,000 years ago by a gang of bandits is the totally unexpected consequence to the leader of the gang which he dramatized during the broadcast of The Greatest Story Ever Told over WMRN on Sunday, Nov. 2, at 6:30 p. m. "The Greater Shield," the story reveals the methods used by gangsters in olden times, showing how they not only ruled but enslaved their victims.

Sunday's dramatization is based on the Biblical quotation in Matthew 5:43-44: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, 'Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you'."

All times given are Eastern Standard Time. Erroneous listings, if any, are caused by last-minute changes made by stations and networks.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF OHIO

Proposing to amend Article VIII of the Constitution of the state of Ohio to provide for the payment of compensation by the state of Ohio to its residents who shall have served in the armed forces of the United States in World War II, or to their survivors, and to issue bonds of the state of Ohio to provide the funds therefor, etc.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, three-fifths of the members elected to each house thereof concurring therein, That there shall be submitted to the electors of the state of Ohio, in the manner prescribed by law, at the general election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1947, a proposition to amend Article VIII of the Constitution of the state of Ohio by adding thereto immediately after section 2a of said Article a new section as follows:

2b. The board of commissioners created by section 8 of Article VIII of the Constitution of the state of Ohio, designated therein "The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund", shall, forthwith upon the adoption of this amendment, proceed to issue and sell, from time to time, bonds of the state of Ohio in such amounts of face value as it may deem necessary to provide the funds, or such part thereof, as may be required to pay the compensation and the expenses of administering this section as herein provided for, provided, however, that the aggregate total amount of face value of bonds so issued shall not exceed three hundred million dollars. The full faith and credit of the state of Ohio is hereby pledged for the payment of such bonds. All bonds so issued shall mature in twenty semi-annual installments after the respective dates thereof, and the maturities thereof shall be so fixed that the total amounts of payments on account of principal and interest to be paid on each of such semi-annual installment payment dates shall be approximately equal, but no such bonds shall be issued or bear dates later than the 1st day of April, 1951. All bonds so issued shall bear interest at such rates as The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund may fix, which interest shall be payable semi-annually. Such bonds, and the interest thereon as income, shall be exempt from all taxes levied by the state of Ohio or any taxing district thereof. The bonds may, at the option of the Sinking Fund Commission, be issued subject to call on any interest payment date at par and accrued interest. All sales of such bonds by The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall be in accordance with such regulations as it shall make and promulgate, provided, however, that such bonds shall be sold only to the highest bidder or bidders therefor after notice of such sale shall have been published once each week for three consecutive weeks on the same day of each of such weeks, the first of such notices being published at least twenty-one full days before the date of sale, in a newspaper of general circulation in each of the eight most populous counties in the state of Ohio, and provided that each of such published notices shall state the day, hour and place of the sale, the total face value of the bonds to be sold, their denominations, dates, and the dates of their maturities, information relative to the rates of interest which the bonds will bear, and the dates upon which interest will be payable. The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall have the right to reject any or all bids and to re-advertise and re-offer bonds for sale. Out of the proceeds of the sale of all bonds, the amount which represents accrued interest, if any, shall be paid into the treasury of the state of Ohio into a fund to be known as the World War II Compensation Bond Retirement Fund. The balance shall be paid into the treasury of the state of Ohio into a fund to be known as the World War II Compensation Fund. The General Assembly of the state of Ohio may appropriate and cause to be paid into the World War II Compensation Bond Retirement Fund or the World War II Compensation Fund, out of the funds in the treasury of the state not otherwise appropriated, such amounts as it may deem proper for use upon order of The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund for the purposes for which such funds are created as herein provided. If the General Assembly should so appropriate any funds to the World War II Compensation Fund prior to the time The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall have issued bonds of the aggregate total amount of face value authorized in this section, the aggregate total amount of face value of bonds so authorized to be issued shall be reduced by the amount of the funds so appropriated.

During the period of fifteen years beginning January 1, 1949, the treasurer of state of the state of Ohio shall, without appropriation thereof by the General Assembly, transfer into said World War II Compensation Bond Retirement Fund one million dollars each month out of funds in the state treasury derived from taxes levied by the state for the purpose of providing revenues to defray the expenses of the state, excepting the taxes levied by the state by sections 5527, 5541, and 6291 of the General Code of Ohio as the same may be in effect on the effective date of this section. To secure such monthly transfer of funds a lien is hereby created upon all funds coming into the state treasury after January 1, 1949, derived from taxes as aforesaid, which lien shall be superior to all such funds. It shall be the duty of the treasurer of state to set aside and use for the purpose of making such monthly transfer of funds, part of each dollar received in the state treasury in each calendar year during said period of fifteen years beginning January 1, 1949, derived from taxes as aforesaid, so that the total amount of money so set aside in each of such calendar years shall be twelve million dollars, and so that the ratio which the amount of each dollar so set aside shall bear to one dollar shall be the same as the ratio which the amount of twelve million dollars shall bear to the total amount of money received in the state treasury in such calendar years derived from taxes as aforesaid. The treasurer of state shall set aside such part of each such dollar by paying out, transferring, or disposing of in any other manner, such dollar, or any part thereof for any other purpose whatsoever, and he shall make the transfer of one million dollars each month to the World War II Compensation Bond Retirement Fund, hereinabove provided for, out of said sum of twelve million dollars so set aside in each of such calendar years.

The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall, on or before the first day of July in each calendar year, levy and certify to the auditor of the state of Ohio a state tax on all taxable property subject to taxation on the general tax lists of all counties in the state of Ohio for such year at such rate as it shall determine to be necessary to provide, together with other money which will be available in the World War II Compensation Bond Retirement Fund, the total amount of funds which will be required in the next following calendar year for the retirement of bonds and the payment of interest payable in such year. Such levy shall be in addition to all other taxes levied now or hereafter within the period during which bonds issued pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be outstanding by or pursuant to law or any provision of the Constitution of the state of Ohio. The auditor of state shall certify such levies to the auditor of each county in the state of Ohio, who shall extend the same on the tax lists of his county for the year in which such levy is made and shall place same for collection on the tax duplicates of his county to be collected at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes on such duplicates. Said taxes herein authorized, when collected, shall be paid into the World War II Compensation Bond Retirement Fund in the treasury of the state. The World War II Compensation Bond Retirement Fund shall be paid out, without appropriation thereof by the General Assembly of Ohio, upon the order of The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund for the purpose of the payment, or retirement in other manner, of said bonds and interest thereon.

The World War II Compensation Fund shall be paid out upon order of The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, without appropriation by the General Assembly of Ohio, in payment of the expenses of administering this section, and as compensation as follows: every person who shall have served in active duty in the armed forces of the United States at any time between December 7, 1941, and September 2, 1945, both dates inclusive, and who, at the time of commencing such service, was and had been a resident of the state of Ohio for at least one year immediately preceding the commencement of such service, and who shall have been separated from such service under honorable conditions, or who is still in such service, or who has been retired, and who was in such service for a period of at least ninety days, shall be entitled to receive compensation of ten dollars for each month during which such person was in active domestic service and fifteen dollars for each month during which such person was in active foreign service within said period of time; provided, however, that any person who was serving in active duty in the armed forces of the United States on the seventh day of December, 1941, and who did not so serve at least ninety days thereafter because of a service-connected injury or death shall be deemed to have served at least ninety days within the period of time commencing December 7, 1941 and ending September 2, 1945; and provided, further, that the maximum amount of compensation payable under this section shall not be in excess of four hundred dollars; and provided, further, that no compensation shall be paid under this section to any person who shall have received from another state a bonus or compensation of a like nature as is provided under this section. No compensation shall be paid under this section to any person for any periods of time spent under penal confinement during the period of active duty. Compensation for a fraction of a month of service shall be paid on the basis of one-thirtieth of the above monthly amounts for each day of such service. Service in the merchant marine of the United States shall not be considered for the purpose of this section. "Domestic service" as used herein means service within the continental limits of the United States (excluding Alaska). "Foreign service" as used herein means service in all other places, including sea duty.

Either the surviving husband or wife, or the surviving child or children, or the surviving parents or parent, of a deceased person shall be paid that same amount of compensation that such deceased person would be entitled to receive under this section, if living; provided, however, that if such deceased person's death was service-connected and in line of duty, his survivors as hereinbefore designated, shall be paid four hundred dollars regardless of the amount of compensation which such deceased person would be entitled to receive under this section, if living; provided further, that the amount of compensation payable to such survivors of such deceased person shall be payable only to one of the three groups of survivors hereinbefore designated in the order in which said groups are herein named; and provided further, that the surviving husband or wife of more than one deceased person who would be entitled to receive compensation under this section, if living, shall be paid only that amount of compensation payable by reason of the first of the deaths of such deceased persons.

No sale or assignment of any right or claim to compensation under this section shall be valid, no claims of creditors shall be enforceable against rights or claims to or payments of compensation under this section, and no fees shall be charged for services in connection with the prosecution of any right or claim to compensation or the collection of any compensation under this section.

The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall have complete charge of making payments of the compensation provided for in this section and shall adopt and promulgate regulations governing their procedure in connection therewith, including determinations as to who are proper beneficiaries and amounts to which such beneficiaries are entitled, determinations as to whether an applicant has the necessary residence requirements, and such other regulations as it may deem necessary and proper; provided, however, that all applications for payment of compensation under this section shall be made to The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund before July 1, 1950.

The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall select and appoint such legal counsel and employees as it may deem necessary, fix their compensation and prescribe their duties, and all such appointees shall serve at its pleasure.

The people of the state of Ohio declare that their enactment of this special amendment of the Constitution of the state of Ohio is to meet the specific emergency covered thereby, and they declare it to be their intention to in no manner affect or change any of the existing provisions of the said Constitution except as herein set forth. The provisions of this section shall be self executing.

Upon the retirement of all of the bonds that may be issued hereunder and the payment of all valid claims for compensation made within the limitations of time as prescribed herein, The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall make a final report to the General Assembly of Ohio, and any balance remaining in any of the funds herein created and referred to shall be disposed of as shall be provided by law.

Be it further resolved, That at the election herein designated for the submission of this amendment to the electors of the state of Ohio, the same shall be placed on the official ballot in the manner prescribed by law and shall be designated as follows:

YES	To amend Article VIII of the Constitution of the state of Ohio to provide for the payment of compensation by the state of Ohio to its residents who shall have served in the armed forces of the United States in World War II, or to their survivors, and to issue bonds of the state of Ohio to provide the funds therefor.
NO

And be it further resolved, That the required publication of the said proposed amendment shall be made and the form of ballot to be used in said election for the submission thereof shall be prepared by the secretary of state, all as provided by law and in conformity with the above provisions. If a majority of the electors voting on said amendment shall be declared according to law, to have voted in favor thereof, the governor of the state of Ohio shall make proclamation thereof forthwith.
